OUR WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Friday, March 15.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH.

There is a good deal of anxiety in Republican circles concerning the President's health, and the effect upon it of his manner of doing business. He has no system or method whatever, but allows his time and strength to be exhausted in listening to office-seekers, and doing other drudgery, which belongs to the Departments. Until Wednesday morning he had not even taken a ride for recreation. From 6 o'clock in the morning until long after midnight, he permits himself to be made the passive victim of the thousands who would readily sacrifice his life and the safety of the nation to their own selfish eagerness for office. This course of action can have but one result. It has killed two good Presidents, and will inevitably deprive the country of another, if it is not changed. A false delicacy prevents his friends from making proper representations to Mr. Lincoln on this subject, and the danger is that his profound and unselfish anxiety to see everybody and give nobody any ground to complain of injustice, will sap his strength and shorten his life. The Departments have clerical force sufficient to digest all applications for office, and he should require the Secretaries to bring him the results of such a sifting process, instead of taking the whole mass on his own shoulders. And, except in cases certified to be important by the proper Department, or where he has some special personal interest or feeling in the matter, he should refuse to allow anybody to talk to him about office. His time and strength and intellectual energy are required by the country for higher duties.

MEETING OF THE CABINET.

The Cabinet had another special meeting this morning, at which Lieut.-Gen. Scott and Gen. Totten, head of the Engineer Corps, were present for two hours. The result has not transpired, but Gen. Scott's smiling face, and evidently excellent spirits, as he left the White House, seemed indicative that his advice in favor of the peace policy was likely to prevail.

Another surmise relative to the Cabinet discussion to-day gives Mexico as the subject in connection with the supposed purpose of the Southern Confederacy to make some movement against the neighbor across their border. Dispatches for Mexico are understood to be preparing to be sent by a special messenger to-morrow.

Later.—I learn that the Cabinet came to no decision to-day on the proposed evacuation of Sumpter, in opposition to which some very strong arguments were made. Recent letters from Maj. Anderson resent with emphatic indignation the insinuations against his disposition to hold the fort to the last extremity. The whole question must be decided on purely military principles.

SENATOR JOHNSON'S POLICY.

Andrew Johnson continues earnestly to favor an abandonment of the United States forts at the South, wherever it is not essential to maintain them. He says the President has nothing to do in this matter, except follow the highest military advice, as this is a purely military question. There will be nothing left of Secessionists, he says, if Sumpter is abandoned.

THE SARDINIAN MISSION.

It is not true that Mr. H. J. Raymond applies for the Sardinian Mission. I have his authority for saying that he neither asks, expects, nor wishes for any office. He thinks he can serve the Administration more effectively in his present office than in any which the President can give him.

REPRESENTATION OF THE COUNTRY ABROAD.

There is a very strong feeling in the best quarters against sending European exiles to represent this country in Europe. The case of Carl Schurz has brought the matter very prominently under discussion, and I have yet to find the first man of any position and responsibility who would indorse his selection as American Minister to Sardinia. The relations of Sardinia to Prussia are very delicate;—and the existence of the Italian Kingdom may be almost said to depend on the good will of Prussia. Under such circumstances the presence of a Prussian exile at the Sardinian Court, as an American Representative, would be a most embarrassing circumstance. Any friendly attention which the Sardinian Court might show to this country in the person of its representative would be liable to most injurious misconstructions. The appointment would be very injurious to the prospects of Italy, and might almost be regarded by Victor Emanuel as an unfriendly act. There is a general willingness to recognize the abilities and political services of Mr. Schurz, but it ought to be done in some way less detrimental to the public honor and the good of Italy. His appointment to Brazil would give general satisfaction. Some of the most strenuous opponents of his appointment to Sardinia are among his own people,—the German citizens of the West.

DISTRIBUTING THE SPOILS.

The President sent to the Senate to-day the nomination of Mr. Elijah Crosby for Minister to Guatemala. This appointment is charged to New-York but Crosby is more properly a Californian. The appointment is regarded as a judicious one.

Corwin has not yet positively accepted the Mexican Mission, but unless he declines, will be unanimously confirmed.

General Spinner's nomination was up again to-day, when several Democratic Senators pitched into him severely, but doing him no damage.

The Massachusetts Congressional delegation met in Boston to-day, but failed to agree upon any appointments for that State.

Petitions arrived here to-day from Boston, signed by merchants, representing upwards of fifty millions of dollars of capital, asking the appointment of L. K. Pangborn as Postmaster of that city. Senator Sumner has the settlement of this appointment. Another petition is reported on the way, signed by a thousand merchants, representing upwards of a hundred million dollars.

The Cabinet has under consideration to-day the Territorial nominations, which are expected to be all disposed of within a few days.

The nomination of Mr. Holloway, of Indiana, as Commissioner of Patents, was to-day agreed to by the President, at the earnest solicitation of Secretary Smith.

T. C. Theaker, of Ohio, one of his most prominent competitors, was also agreed upon for first examiner under Holloway, if he will accept. These nominations probably will be sent in to-morrow.

There seems to be considerable commotion among Minnesotians relative to the appointments agreed upon by the delegation for their State, and efforts are making to overturn them.

D. K. Carter, of Ohio, is nominated for Governor of Colorado Territory.

OFFICE-SEEKING IN THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY.

One of the many clerks who resigned their offices here from "patriotic" motives, and went to Montgomery to tender their services to the Southern Confederacy, has written to his friends here that that Government is "no great shakes" after all. He and his compatriot applied for office, and did not get anything but a vague promise. He says that there are five times as may applicants for office there under the Southern embryo Government as there are here, and that the town is so besieged by this class of persons that the hotels charge three dollars and a half per day. He will return in a day or two. The rush for Army and Navy commissions is unparalleled, and the town is actually overrun by office-seekers; but the offers of men for the ranks of the army are proportionately small.

VERBAL SET-TO BETWEEN DOUGLAS AND FESSENDEN.

Senators Douglas and Fessenden had a sharp verbal passage at arms in the Senate to-day, in which Douglas suffered severely. He made a set speech attacking Republicans, for not declaring their policy, and Senator Wilson replied to him. Douglas rejoined, and was understood to say "the Senator from Maine," which Mr. Fessenden corrected. Mr. Douglas denied that he used the language attributed to him; and on Mr. Fessenden persisting, Mr. Douglas pronounced it "false," and that Mr. Fessenden "knew it to be false."

Mr. Fessenden replied in a keen, cool and perfectly scathing speech, as severe a piece of polished invective as I ever heard. He said he would concede to Mr. Douglas everything he claimed, except that he was a gentleman, which he could not acknowledge, because he had used language which no gentleman, without greater provocation, ever used.

Mr. Douglas rejoined, saying as Mr. Fessenden proposed to settle the matter elsewhere, he had no more to say.

Mr. Fessenden replied, denying that he had said so, and scourging Douglas again on the Code. The skirmish was very sharp. Douglas was angry and in the wrong, and he committed the great fault of refusing to acknowledge it. He lost ground decidedly. Mr. Fessenden said Lincoln had declared his policy to be peace; that he would enforce the laws where he had legal authority to do so—otherwise not. With this declaration he believed the country was content.

Mr. Douglas might have made a strong point against the Republicans if he had avoided the this personal issue with Fessenden. As it was, he was utterly routed.

The discussion grew out of an effort by Mr. Douglas to force his resolution of yesterday to a vote. His speech was a curious production—half peace, half war—having for its apparent object the creation of divisions at the North, and a split in the Republican Party. The weakest part of his argument was his effort to make it appear the duty of the Administration to expose its policy and the facts on which it was based—matters which clearly ought not now to be made public.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING OFFICE.

The Attorney-General has nearly completed the examination of the titles to the Public Printing-office, purchased by the Government, from Mr. Wendell. As soon as he reports upon the titles, Mr. Wendell will receive his money, $135,000, of which he will have some thousands to dispense among the lobby, which has been nearly starved of late, and appears to be very hungry.

THE OHIO SENATORSHIP.

Dispatches from Columbus, Ohio, announce twenty-nine ballots in the Republican caucus for Senator to fill Chase's vacancy. John Sherman and Gov. Dennison are the principal candidates. Sherman was withdrawn, but will probably be brought forward again, stronger than before.

THE CALIFORNIA SENATORIAL ELECTION.

Californians here consider that the latest news from Sacramento relative to the senatorial contest indicates the probable conclusion of some arrangement between the Republicans and the great body of the Douglas Democrats for the election of some moderate man of the latter party. McDougal, apparently, cannot be chosen; and if he withdraws from the battle, Judge John Curry, late Douglas candidate for Governor, seems most likely to be the man on whom the majority will unite. He is a very capable man, and the people have entire confidence in his integrity.

BURLINGAME AGAIN FOR CONGRESS.

Hon. Anson Burlingame is receiving numerous letters from Boston, urging him to return and run again for Congress, in the Fifth District, in the event of the resignation of Hon. Wm. Appleton, which is anticipated. Mr. Burlingame says he wouldn't go through the campaign again for "$1,000 a minute," and suggests that some other white man shall try it for a few years, and see if he don't become as black as the late member of Congress from the Fifth District of Massachusetts.

DISPATCH TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, Friday, March 15.

The Cabinet had another meeting this morning. Gen. Scott was present with them. This fact strengthens the surmise that they were in consultation on military affairs.

J. H. Wheeler, ex-Minister to Nicaragua, has been removed from the position of Document Clerk in the Interior Department.

Accounts from Charleston say that Gov. Pickens and Gen. Beauregard have decided on erecting fortifications at Stano, and at all the inlets leading to that harbor.

Col. Forney, in command of the Pensacola Navy-yard, informed the commander of the Brooklyn, on the 6th, that he could get no more water or coal at that station.

The Commissioners from the Confederate States do not expect an answer to their communication for several days. It is understood the matter of their embassy is now engaging the attention of the Cabinet.

Great weight is attached in political circles to the declaration of Mr Fessenden, to-day, in the Senate, that the Administration contemplated a policy of peace, and would exercise no authority not strictly in accordance with law, and not until ample time has been taken for an examination of the question in all its bearings.

The only confirmations by the Senate, to-day, were those of George W. Alexander, as Lieutenant in the Navy, and James P. Harrison, as Surgeon.

The President has nominated Elisha C. Crosby as Minister to Guatemala.

Mr. Halloway, of Indiana, has been appointed Commissioner of Patents.

Dispatch to the Baltimore American.

Washington, Thursday, March 14.

The city continues full of the wildest rumors as to the policy of the Administration on coercion, appointments, &c. Everybody you meet professes to know the exact condition of the Cabinet slate, whilst those who might be expected to know profess the profoundest ignorance of the facts as they really exist, from which it is evident that there are no leaky vessels among the President's advisers. The leading question is: "Have orders been issued to evacuate Sumter?" One-half swear affirmatively—the other half are equally confident of the negative. The facts are, however, that a messenger has been sent to Sumpter to announce the decision of the President and the Cabinet to Major Anderson, who will communicate it to Gov. Pickens, but the mode of the evacuation has not yet been decided upon. Gen. Scott favors the garrison coming overland to Washington, whilst the President prefers they should be brought to Fortress Monroe in a steamer direct from the Fortress.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

AN EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS PROBABLE—FEELING IN NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA—EFFECT OF A PEACE POLICY—IMPORTS IN THE COTTON STATES, &C.

Washington, Thursday, March, 14, 1861.

The impression gains ground that an extra session of Congress must be called in order to meet the emergencies of a dissolving Government. Something must be done with the seceding States. They must be voted out or whipped into the Union; and, in either case, a session of Congress is indispensable. The feeling among North-western men is strong in favor of maintaining the authority of the Union intact, and of reënforcing Major Anderson at any hazard. But the prevailing opinion is that necessity, as well as policy, dictates the propriety of withdrawing the force from Fort Sumpter.

The secession feeling in the eastern portions o Virginia and North Carolina is undoubtedly on the increase, consequent upon the warlike construction placed upon the Inaugural, and I am assured that the same is true of Tennessee. The Secessionists have made the best use in their power of that document; and wherever the slave interest is predominant, there can be no doubt that they have gained ground. But in the western portions of Virginia and North Carolina, and the eastern portion of Tennessee, where Slavery is of secondary importance, the Union sentiment is still strong, and probably invincible. The surrender of Fort Sumpter would strip secession in all these States of the food it feeds on—sympathy with those further South. If the latter are severely let alone, the demagogues in the former will have nothing left with which to irritate and inflame the popular mind; and in three or four months more the troubled waters will be as calm as a May morning.

There can be no doubt that the most terrible blow which can be given to secession in the Secession States, is to withdraw the United States troops, and dismiss them to all the cares and responsibilities of self-government. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1859, when the imports of the Cotton States were perhaps greater than ever before known, the total amount was only $21,965,993. This includes the imports of New-Orleans, of course, which were $18,349,516, or about six-sevenths of the aggregate. The imports of the entire Union during the year amounted to $338,768,130; and hence the States now calling themselves the Confederate States of America imported only about one-fifteenth part of the whole amount of goods brought into the country from abroad. The Congress of these States, at Montgomery, have recently adopted a tariff of duties averaging not above twenty per cent. ad valorem, which would produce a revenue upon the $21,965,993 of $4,393,198.

But it is not to be supposed that the Confederate States, when separated from the Union, will import anything like as much as they have heretofore done. New-Orleans has hitherto imported to some extent for the whole Mississippi Valley. If secession shall be consummated, her trade will be limited to the region below the lines of Arkansas and Tennessee. Whatever importations come through the mouth of the Mississippi for the up-country—for the States within the present Union—will come free of levies on the part of the Confederate States. They have already given a guarantee for the free navigation of that river, from a consciousness that the people in the upper portion of the Valley would never submit to taxation, or to interruption. Charleston and Savannah, for like reasons, will be cut off from supplying Tennessee and North Carolina with goods, as they have heretofore done. Their railroad connections will avail them nothing with Custom-houses at the boundary lines which will separate them from the Northern Union.

For these obvious reasons, it may be set down as certain that the imports of the Cotton Confederacy will fall down to one-half their present amount; and their revenue from customs, at the low rates fixed by the Montgomery Convention, will scarcely exceed two millions!

This insignificant sum from the source of revenue exclusively relied upon in the Union, will barely pay the excess of expense over the receipts of the Post-office Department in the seceded States. This excess was, in 1857, (the latest Post-master-General's Report I have at hand,) no less than $1,506,375 71! The mail accommodations in the seven States cost $2,208,732 46, while the total receipts from postage amounted to but $702,356 75. The people have owed their mail facilities to the bounty of the United States Government, which their demagogues have persuade them, notwithstanding, was all the while a great burden.

They are now in the way to find out the mistake into which they have been led, and they can repent at leisure of the folly and wickedness which has precipitated them out of the Union. When the manifold expenses of a separate Federal Government, including civil list, army, navy and extra expenses of carrying the mails, are superadded to those they have heretofore borne for State purposes, and when these enormous amounts are raised, or attempted to be raised by direct or excise taxes, there cannot be a shadow of doubt that revolution will ensue. The demagogues who have brought about the rebellion will be overwhelmed, and the people, under new leaders, will return to their allegiance under the Constitution, without asking for "additional guarantees."

The proposition before the Senate to declare the seats of Senators from the seceded States vacant, was briefly discussed to-day, without arriving at any conclusion. The "Democratic" side of the body still show their affinity for treason and secession, but they are now too weak to oppose any serious obstacle to the resolution. If this resolution is faulty in anything, it is in dealing too gently with the seceding Senators. They should be expelled for having conspired to overthrow the Government, and set up another. Their case calls far more loudly for action than that of Wigfall. He only talks treason, but the Senators named in the resolution are acting it openly, in the attempt to organize another Government.

Boldness, impudence, and perseverance. are the qualities which insure success in office-hunting, whatever party may be in power. It would be amazing, if it were not better calculated to awaken disgust and indignation, to see what sort of claims are set up for high places, and the facility with which they are recognized. Long and earnest efforts to promote the triumphant cause are no guarantee of success, and it may be doubted if they are not prejudicial; while the impudent fellow who has feasted and flattered members of Congress, goes to the President with troops of influential friends to back him, and reams of recommendations to attest his patriotic services. It was said long along by Fielding, if I mistake not, that poverty is a bad recommendation for office, and modesty is if anything worse. Observer.

THIRTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

SENATE—EXTRA SESSION.

Washington, Friday, March 15.

Mr. Mason, of Virginia, (Dem.,) offered the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, The presence of a military force concentrated and permanently quartered at the seat of Government is a departure from all former usage of the Government and dangerous to the rights and liberties of the people, therefore

Resolved, That the President inform the Senate what number of the troops of the army are quartered in this City, the respective arms of service, and the purpose for which they were brought here; and further, that he inform the Senate when such troops are to be withdrawn, and if not to be withdrawn for what purpose they are maintained here and whether it is his purpose to increase said force, and to what extent.

Mr. Douglas' resolution in relation to the forts, arsenals, navy yards and other public property in the seceded States was then taken up. The resolution is as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be requested to inform the Senate what forts, arsenals, navy-yards and other public works within the limits of the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas are now within the actual possession and occupation of the United States, and by what number of men each is garrisoned and held, and whether reinforcements are necessary to retain the same, and if so, whether the Government has the power and means under existing laws to supply such reinforcements within such time as the exigencies and necessities of the case may demand, and whether the defence and protection of the United States and their interests make it necessary and wise to retain military possession of such forts, places and other property, except at Key West and Tortugas, and to recapture and re-occupy such others as the United States have been deprived of by seizure or surrender for any other purpose and with a view to any other end than the subjugation and occupation of those States which have assumed the right to secede from the Union, and within whose limits such forts and other public property are situated; and if such be the motives for recapturing and holding the forts and other public property, what military force, including regulars and volunteers, would be necessary to enable the United States to reduce the States aforesaid and such others as are supposed to sympathize with them, to subjection and obedience to the laws of the Union, and to protect the Federal Capital.

Mr. Clark suggested an amendment, to strike out all after the words "United States."

Mr. Douglas said he could not accede to the amendment. It was important to the peace of the country that the resolution should be answered, as in both sections the Inaugural is construed as indicative of a war policy. If the apprehension is allowed to ripen into the conviction that the Administration meditate a war policy, to reduce the seceded States by military force, he feared we would have the issue precipitated upon us in a shorter time than we imagine. He did not believe the policy is war. This construction is disputed on the Democratic side, while the Republicans remain mute, silent, neither assenting nor dissenting from his interpretation. In this state of the case for the purpose of quieting the apprehension of the country that the Administration does not meditate war, and secondly, that he has no means of prosecuting war, even if Mr. Lincoln desired to do so, he (Douglas) had brought in his resolution for the purpose of obtaining information important to be known. An attempt was made to prevent its consideration. It was suggested that discussion, if not improper, would be injurious. But what bad effects could result if it was necessary to have the information desired? If the policy of the Administration be peace, it will relieve existing apprehensions, restore confidence, and cause rejoicing throughout the length and breadth of the land. If, on the contrary, the policy be war, it is due to the people of the country that the fact should be known. He repeated that Mr. Lincoln does not meditate war. Certain he was that, under existing laws, the President cannot, consistently with his oath, do anything to produce a collision between the seceding States and the Federal Government. In the first place, he has no power, under the existing laws, to collect the revenue on shipboard, as suggested by partisan newspapers The law stands just as it did when Jackson called on Congress for additional legislation to collect the revenues at the port of Charleston. He had no power to order a collection anywhere else than in those places designated by law. Congress passed a law well known to the country as the Force bill. It was passed in March, 1833, and expired at the end of the next session by express limitation. What was, and is true as to Charleston, is true as to all the other ports of the seceded States. There was, therefore, no danger of collision, unless, as Senators suppose, the President is going to violate the laws and do that which is forbidden. With regard to blockading, there was no more authority to blockade New-Orleans, Charleston or any other of the ports in the seceding States, than New-York or Chicago. They had been told the President was going to enforce the laws in the seceded States. How? By calling out the militia, and the Army and Navy? But the President could not employ them without the authority of law. These and the preceding points Mr. Douglas proceeded to argue. What cause was there for the apprehension that the President is going to pursue a war policy unless he shall call Congress together for that purpose? He took it for granted the means for making war, or to collect the revenue, or retake and possess the forts, or enforce the laws within the seceding States, will not be conferred by Congress. He came to this conclusion from the fact that the President's political friends had the power to clothe him with those means for the last six weeks, and they declined doing so.

Mr. Fessenden inquired was there a single day during the last Congress when the Republicans had a majority.

Mr Douglas replied, he chose to answer the question in his own way, and repeated that the Republicans had the power to pass such measures through both Houses. He believed they had the majority in consequence of the absence of Messrs. Pugh and Saulsbury, and the two Senators from Texas would not have voted against them. One of them so stated. The House had the power to pass a force bill, but postponed it from time to time till the President elect reached here, and then put it to sleep at once and never allowed it to breathe the breath of life. The Senate found no difficulty in passing a law authorizing the Postmaster-General to suspend the mails when obstructed in the seceding States. If it be the policy of the Administration to use the war power to collect the revenue, blockade the ports, and recapture the forts and execute the laws in the seceding States, why not say so? He (Douglas) had taken his position as a Union man and friend of peace; and if he had given a wrong interpretation to the Inaugural, why not let us have the President's answer? Why were the Republicans thus sensitive if he did not give a correct interpretation of the Inaugural? No Senator had ventured to deny his interpretation. No one had ventured to say the President's policy was not peace. He ventured to say that no one was authorized to contradict him on these points. Why did the Republicans remain silent? Business is partially suspended; commerce destroyed; bankruptcy staring us in the face. One word from the White House would save many from ruin. One word from the White House would gladden every part of the land. Let that word be spoken and let the word be "Peace," and there will be such a shout of joy resounding through this country as has not been heard since the Declaration of Independence. There were other reasons why this important word should be spoken. And in this connection he mentioned the fact that the elections are coming on, and in choosing members of Congress the people have a right to know whether the policy is peace or war. The States in whose limits the forts are located are entitled to hold them, unless there is something peculiar which requires them to be possessed for national purposes. It so happens as to the latter with the forts at Tortugas. They are essential without reference to the seceded States. It was idle to endeavor to avoid the question. It is no longer as to the collection of revenue or taking care of the public property. The question is whether we are going to reduce the Southern Confederacy to subjection or not. He presumed the Senators are convinced by this time that that means war. We cannot deny that there is a Southern Confederacy de facto in existence, with the capital at Montgomery. We might regret it. He did most profoundly. But he could not deny the fact, painfully mortifying as it is. But if the Republicans, after meeting in caucus, could not silence others, they kept silent themselves, as they were divided into compromisers and non-compromisers, Disunion and Union Republicans, war and peace Republicans.

Mr. Fessenden inquired whether the Senator meant to intimate that the Republicans had, in caucus, resolved to keep silent.

Mr. Douglas replied that he did not mean to intimate. He said frankly he heard it rumored, and supposed it to be true.

Mr. Fessenden said it was untrue, from beginning to end.

Mr. Douglas—But it comes from your side of the house. At any rate, you are silent over there; silent when the country may be wrecked on a misapprehension as to the policy of the Administration. He desired to know whether the Administration meant peace or war. If war were designed, it will require a large army. Rumor says that estimates have already been made, and that 250,000 men will be required, which will involve an expenditure of $316,000,000 annually. Remember, the men to be called for in the eighteen Free States, are to fight those in the fifteen Slave States. Are we prepared for this line of policy? Silence is criminal, when we are on the eve of events like these. His opinion was, we must choose promptly one of three lines of policy—first, the restoration and preservation of the Union by such amendments to the Constitution as will insure domestic tranquility, safety and equality, of all the States, and thus restore peace, unity and fraternity to the whole country; secondly, a peaceful dissolutton of the Union by recognizing the independence of these States as they refuse to remain in the Union without such constitutional amendments as will secure their rights, and the establishment of a liberal system of commerce and social intercourse with them by treaties of commerce and amity; and, thirdly, war, with a view to their subjugation, and military occupation of those States which have seceded, and may secede from the Union. The sooner the choice is made the better for you, and for every friend of liberty and constitutional government throughout the world. The first proposition is the best, and the last is the worst.

Mr. Douglas proceeded to argue in favor of the first proposition, saying that if the proper amendments be made, the Border States will remain with us, and the Gulf States return. He congratulated the Republicans that in organizing Governments for Nevada, Colorado and Decotah they omitted the Wilmot Proviso, thus abandoning their aggressive policy in the Territories. They had come over to him. I (he said,) receive you with kindness. [Laughter.] I welcome you. I forgive you all acts of unkindness and insults and slanders heaped on my devoted head. I forgive you all for this one act of devotion to your country. It is our duty to adopt such amendments to the Constitution as will insure domestic tranquillity, and give equality to all the States of the Union, Do this, and the Union will be restored and preserved to all generations!

Mr. Wilson, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) said that Mr. Douglas was a man of anxiety. The President had scarcely delivered his kind and genial Inaugural, when the Senator from Illinois stepped forth unasked to give his interpretation of it. Nobody on the Republican side undertook either to sanction or disavow that interpretation; but the Senator was not content to stand even on his own interpretation of the Inaugural. He was not content that the President and his Cabinet, which had just taken possession of a Government and country in ruin, should have time enough to cast about, and see what principle and patriotism require to be done; but he rushed into this Chamber, and brought in a resolution asking the Administration to declare at once to the country what it intended to do. The Administration would make known its policy through gentlemen in whom it had confidence.

Mr. Douglas said he could pardon the petulance of the Senator, (Mr. Wilson,) who only showed that he was hurt. He talked about strutting, when it was that Senator's only purpose to make a personal assault upon him. He referred to Mr. Wilson as belonging to the war wing of the Republican Party.

Mr. Fessenden, of Maine, (Rep.,) explained the reason for an interruption which he had made. It was to call Mr. Douglas' attention to the fact that he said the Senator from "Maine," instead of the Senator from "Massachusetts."

Mr. Douglas said that the Senator was mistaken. He did not refer to the Senator from Maine. His words were, "from whatever quarter they came."

Mr. Fessenden replied, that the Senator's remarks were understood as he (Fessenden) had said.

Mr. Douglas said some could not understand the truth when it was told. Courtesy required the Senator to accept his explanation. The Senator attaches more importance to himself than others did. He is respectable, debates very well, and he should not think allusion was made to him, as there were other people than himself.

Mr. Fessenden, in further explanation, thought that Mr. Douglas had merely made a slip of the tongue in saying "the Senator from Maine."

Mr. Douglas—When I make a correction a Senator is bound to accept it. You admit it because I say the statement is false and the Senator ought to know it.

Mr. Fessenden said that the Senator was determined on a personal quarrel, and he could not admit Mr. Doualas to be a gentleman because he had used ungentlemanly language. He then proceeded to speak of Mr. Douglas in irony, and showed why the resolution ought not to pass. The tendency and design of Mr. Douglas' speech was to induce the belief that the country is about being plunged into war by an act of the Administration, and to inflame the suspicions of the people. He made it a rule in this chamber to insult no man, or use offensive language. He did not know whether Mr. Douglas held to the code of honor.

Mr. Douglas said that Mr. Fessenden would be informed when he made the inquiry in a proper way.

Mr. Fessenden replied that Mr. Douglas' courage was well known. But he need not be fearful that he would send him a challenge, or words to this effect.

A further colloquy ensued between them.

Mr. Hale, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) said he recognized a portion of the censure of the Senator from Illinois as intended for himself. He found, already prepared for him, a little speech, which is to be found in an old book, 15th chapter, as follows: "Absalom said, moreover, O that I were made a judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me and I would do him justice." [Laughter.] This speech he preferred to his own crude ideas.

Mr. Douglas—That quotation would have great weight. It only showed that it was read to avoid argument, and to make a personal attack upon him. Hence he would say: Come on—make attack after attack—get your quotations in advance. I am ready to meet you. The Senator from Massachusetts led off in a miserable personal attack—the Senator from Maine followed—then the Senator from New-Hampshire came in with what he called a written speech. I expect to give these gentlemen some trouble during this session. I know their schemes—I do not mean they shall break up the Union and draw the country into war. [Applause in the galleries.]

A Senator suggested the galleries be cleared.

Mr. Douglas—As the galleries will not be quiet, I will say no more.

He abruptly took his seat.

The Senate then went into executive session, after which it adjourned.

GEN. SCOTT TO HIS CORRESPONDENTS

Begs to say that, of their innumerable letters, he does not find it practicable (being quite infirm) to read one in five, nor to answer one in thirty. Applications for autographs and offices are most burdensome. The former increase with his inability to use the pen, and of the latter he has, within his own gift but two small places, (long well filled,) and he recommends no one whatever, other than an old soldier, nor for any office whatever out of the army.

CONGRESS OF THE C. S. A.

Montgomery, Ala., Thursday, March 14.

A bill was introduced into the Southern Congress to-day, to establish an Admiralty Court in Mississippi, the Judge to reside at Vicksburg.

News has been received here, apparently from a reliable source, that five United States war vessels left New-York on Tuesday night, well armed, and with a large number of marines and ample provisions on board, believed to be destined to some Southern port.

Montgomery, Friday, March 15.

The veto message upon the African Slave-trade act has had the secrecy clause removed. The President objects to the sixth section of the act, which authorizes the sale of Africans to the highest bidder, as being in opposition to the clause of the Constitution forbidding such trade, and the mandate to legislete effectually to prevent the same.

A vote was taken on passing it over the veto, which resulted in 15 yeas to 24 nays.

There was nothing interesting in the public session to-day.

The Congress adjourns to-morrow.

The Montgomery Advertiser, of March 9, has this paragraph:

"We understand that the Postmaster-General of the Confederate States yesterday received, from the 'American Bank Note Engraving Company,' at New-York, a lot of impressions from steel plates of small figures, from which he might make selections for the stamps authorized by the late act prescribing the rates of postage. He doubtless intends to make arrangements without delay for procuring stamps of the several denominations adopted. The devices were sent without solicitation."

MOVEMENTS OF HON. A. H. STEPHENS.

Augusta, Ga., Thursday, March 14.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, Vice-President of the Southern Confederacy, passed through this city, en route to Savannah. A salute was fired in his honor.

THE VIRGINIA STATE CONVENTION.

Richmond, Friday, March 15.

Mr. Conrad advocated the majority report, and maintained the legal right of secession, though policy would be to make proper demands for amendments to the Constitution, and he believed the North would accede to them. He said he would make these propositions in a future report, and he had no doubt they would be acceptable to the Convention.

THE VOTE AT PETERSBURGH.

Petersburgh, Friday, March 15.

The polls closed at sunset, with the following result: Whole number of votes, 1,641; for secession, 879; against, 762. The Union vote in February was 1,039, against 427. There was an immense procession after the closing of the polls, headed by a band of music and a secession flag, which escorted Mr. Pryor to the dépôt. He speaks at Richmond to-night.

THE LOUISIANA STATE CONVENTION.

New Orleans, Friday, March 15.

The State Convention is awaiting the reception of an official copy of the Constitution of the Confederated States. The Montgomery delegates are daily expected.

THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE ELECTION.

Boston, Friday, March 15.

Returns from 192 towns in New-Hampshire foot up for Berry 32,346; Stark 28,289. The majority for Berry thus far is about 4,000.

THE MASSACHUSETTS APPOINTMENTS.

Boston, Friday, March 15.

The members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress now here held an informal meeting at the Parker House, this forenoon, in reference to applications for office. But four members were present Nothing definite was agreed upon.

There appears to be no truth in the rumor that the Massachusetts Delegation to Congress have the parceling out of the Federal offices in their State.

The report that Hon. Wm. Appleton contemplates resigning his seat in the next Congress, is contradicted.

SEIZURE OF THE SCHOONER RESTLESS.

THE RESULT OF HAVING NO UNITED STATES COLLECTOR AT SOUTHERN PORTS.

The refusal of the Collector of Customs at Mobile to perform his duty to the Government, in giving a register to a coasting vessel of the United States, has furnished the first case of difficulty which has arisen in consequence of the resignation of those officers of the Government at Southern ports.

The schooner Restless, of Great Egg Harbor, N. J., sailing under a coasting license, arrived at Mobile, from Philadelphia, about the 2d of January. As he could get no freight coastwise, the captain was obliged to accept the offer of a cargo from Havana to New-York. As this voyage would require him to obtain a register in exchange for his coasting license, the Collector was applied to for that purpose. The Mobile official replied that he had ceased to act for the United States, and could not, therefore, furnish a United States register. There being no other course left for the captain to pursue, he entered his protest, and got the Spanish Consul to countersign it. He then sailed for Havana, where he loaded for New-York, and arrived here on Thursday morning. As soon as the vessel arrived, she was seized by order of the Collector, for a violation of the eighth section of the "Act for enrolling and licensing ships," &c., dated Feb. 20, 1793.

There is little doubt as to the issue of this case. The Secretary of the Treasury, on learning the facts, will, undoubtedly, remit the penalty incurred, and release the vessel.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

We are requested to repeat that the United States ships Supply, Mohawk, and Crusader, which left the Navy-yard on Thursday, are destined to join the squadron which has been recalled from the Gulf of Mexico to our seaboard. The revenue vessels added to the fleet are intended to augment it to a respectable coast guard, as already stated. The chartered vessels, Star of the West, Empire City, Philadelphia, and Coatzacoalcos, are employed for the purpose openly avowed by the Government, viz.: that of conveying United States troops from Texas, and between other posts. The detachment called off on the island on Thursday is for Florida. The Mohawk and Crusader will report to the Commander-in-Chief of the station in the neighborhood of Pensacola. The Philadelphia will probably be used, if Sumpter be evacuated, to bring the garrison of that fort to Old Point Comfort, Va.

The United States steamer Mohawk and store-ship Supply, also steamer Empire City, sailed from Quarantine yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock.

IS THE "SLAUGHTER-PEN" A FAILURE?

We published yesterday morning a dispatch from the Charleston Courier office, denying the truth of the report that the floating battery was a failure. Per contra, we find the following in the Charleston correspondence of the Providence Journal:

"The floating battery has at last proved a failure. From the weight being all on one side, it was found necessary to build a staging extending beyond the other side, on which were piled bags of sand in order to bring it to an even keel, which had the effect to break it in two, and thus render it useless, as it is improbable that it can be strengthened sufficiently to be of any utility hereafter. And it will remain after they have expended $20,000 upon it, a monument of Charleston ingenuity."

THE TRAITOR TWIGGS.

A report reached New-Orleans on March 8, that Mr Buchanan had ordered the reconsideration of the order striking Gen. Twiggs' name from the Army Roll, and the Delta says that when informed of it, the General declared, "with characteristic emphasis, that they should not reconsider the case; but that he would, as soon as his health permitted, proceed to consider their case, and to hand Buchanan and Holt down to posterity as the most black-hearted calumniators who ever disgraced humanity." The Delta says further, that "so far from having anticipatad the assumption of command of the Department by Col. Waite, by surrendering the public property to Texas, the General, as soon as apprised that Waite had been sent, at his own urgent and repeated solisitation, to supercede him, Gen. Twiggs insisted that Waite should enter immediately on the duties of the command. The neglect of Waite to do so continued the General in command until the Texans had assembled an overwhelming force."

ART GOSSIP.

Venice Long Ago.—Leutze has just completed a "View in Venice" in the olden time, which is in several respects a master-piece, displaying effects of light and color superior even to his best previous productions, and indicating that progress which is the crowning proof of the first-class artist. It represents the embouchure of the Canale Grande, with the Church Santa Maria della Salute, of course, to the left, and the long row of palaces on either hand, fading in dim distance. The fore-centre is occupied by a gondola, such as gondolas were before an edict of the Consiglio sentenced them to be clad in black, in order to repress the excessive luxury which the nobility displayed in ornamenting these boats. A lady is seated in it, beneath a rich crimson canopy—through which the light falling produces a peculiarly rich glow—while a cavalier near her, and the gondolier dozing unreproved behind, complete the incident. The picture, however, embraces many other noticeable points. The remarkable variety of aerial effects introduced is equaled by those given in the play of the water, in the waves, and especially in the reflections from "castle, tower and town." The rich, fresh green under the gondolas is peculiarly and strikingly balanced by the liberal light of the crimson canopy, and the exquisite purple reflection to the left, with other harmonious hues introduced in the middle distance, appropriately prepare the eye for the dreamy dimness of the city.

> "I saw from out the wave her structures rise,
> As from the touch of an enchanter's wand."

Those who have never seen Turner's "Venice," will find in this picture of Leutze's the most exquisite pictorial illustration of the grand and dreamy spirit of Byron's verses with which we are acquainted.

It is well known that Venice is the fatherland of European color, but it has not been so generally remarked that the varied hues presented by sea-water, palaces, bridges, squarely-massed, deeply-indented houses, mist and sunshine, are there very remarkable, and were probably an indirect cause of the rich hues spread by its artists over their canvas. It is also worthy of note that the Dutch artists of the Sixteenth Century, who brought so many secrets of color to Venice, were themselves dwellers by canals, under similar influences, and that some of the most effective colorists of France have all painted under marine influences or amid river scenes. There is in accordance with this peculiar fact a peculiar appropriateness in making a view of Venice abundant in rich color and varied plays of light and shadow. Few places in the world present more phantasmagoric effects, and some of these are handled with exquisite delicacy in the painting to which we refer.

Palmer's Marbles.—Messrs. Annesby & Ferris, of Albany, N. Y., who have the right of photographing all of Palmer's Marbles, have just issued a picture of "The White Captive," presenting a rear view of that very remarkable work. As a photograph it is most accurate and clear, while as a study it is of great value.

The Alleghanies.—Sonntag has completed his long worked upon picture of "Sunset in the Alleghanies." It is on exhibition at the rooms of Williams & Stevens, and will, doubtless, attract, as it deserves, great attention and consequent commendation.

Home Again.—Schaus has recaptured Van Lerius' "Cinderella and her Sisters." They occupy the little parlor at the back of Schaus' store, and will be happy to receive their friends from 10 A. M. to 9 P. M. daily. The modern Athenians regarded this picture, we understand, with feelings of remarkable satisfaction, and, indeed, were pleased to say through one of their leading dailies, that "on the whole Van Lerius has done himself credit." "Done himself credit" is good. Schaus has shown excellent judgment in bringing the girls back to New-York.

Willow Swamp.—Hazeltine exhibited at the Athenæum a few evenings since, a landscape entitled "Willow Swamp," which is considered to be one of the best works he ever painted. It is in a somewhat different style from that in which he usually indulges, and is worthy of the position assigned it at the exhibition.

Mountain Scene.—Gifford presented at the same time a landscape, giving some grand old mountains by twilight. The effect produced by a crimson sky, such as all who have been at the Catskills on a Summer night have seen, is decidedly fine. The peculiar sky, the well-developed mountain, and the clear running brook, form features in the picture long to be remembered, and of which the friends of the artist are justly proud.

The Prince of Wales.—We have before alluded to the various ways in which this young gentleman had been "done" by painters, sculptors, photographers and newspapers, but we have now another manner to record. A well-known literary gentleman of Providence, distinguished alike for genius, industry and a love of queer books, was at the pains to cut from the papers, foreign and domestic, metropolitan and rural, comic and serious, all and everything pertaining to the recent visit of His Royal Highness to this country. These he has pasted carefully and tastefully into two very large-sized volumes, made for the purpose, to which he has prefaced a very interesting account of the youthful Prince aforesaid—the whole forming a complete, entertaining and instructive account of his tour through the States and Provinces. The same gentleman has, in a similiar manner, prepared books concerning the Atlantic Cable, the Great Eastern and the Japanese Embassy. Fifty years hence the pictures will be laughed at, the correspondence will be marveled at, and the ingenuity and industry of the compiler will embalm his memory most gratefully.

John Hancock.—The statue of this eminent patriot, by Stone, is at length completed, pedestaled, and installed in its place at the Capitol. It is certainly a work of great excellence and reflects credit upon the power of the artist. Hancock is dressed in the Revolutionary costume, and holds in his hand a roll, which the Union-loving citizens are induced to believe is the Declaration of Independence. There is evinced in the expression of the features and the pose of the body, a determination of purpose and an energy of will which was characteristic of the man. As a portrait it is pronounced very good; and as a work of art, it is far above mediocrity.

Icebergs.—Church continues at his iceberg composition, the color of which is said to be charming, and the general effect one of great power.

Water Views.—Kensett, who is also at Washington, has finished a picture which he calls "Sunset on the Seacoast." The subject was found on the famous beach at Lynn, Mass., where the fast men of Boston display their "cobs," and the operatives of Lynn delight to make love and clam chowder. He has under way a view on Lake George, a place, by the way, which is peculiarly a pet among artists.

Mary, Queen of Scots.—This picture, to which we have before called attention, promises to be one of Lang's most successful compositions. He has worked long and hard at it, and as it advances towards a desirable completion its merits and claim to praise are clearly apparent.

Lafayette and his Troubles.—Leutze has chosen to hand down to coming generations, as an evidence of his skill, a picture of the patriot Lafayette in sorrow. He represents him as he was when imprisoned by the Austrians at Olmutz, and at the immediate moment of his greatest trial, when his wife and children are calling at his cell. The work is as yet not completed, but there is little doubt as to its ultimate success. Leutze has a sincere veneration for the character of his subject, and works now with a will, as well as with skill and genius.

Our City artists are somewhat scattered. Many are in Europe, others at Washington, and several at the South. The Winter season has been for the majority of them a successful one, particularly for those whose specialty is portrait painting, while those who indulge in dreams and fancy sketches have no occasion for complaint. On Monday night the National Academy of Design affords a private view of its annual exhibition to invited guests, and on Wednesday night opens its rare collection for the enjoyment of the public generally. The Brooklyn Association of Artists has made a grand beginning, and it is in contemplation to give one more public exhibition this Spring. The number of members was at first limited to 200, certain financial people having imagined that a city of 250,000 inhabitants could muster no more than that number of art lovers; but it has been so generally condemned by persons of liberality and taste, that the proposition to reopen the list of members and admit fifty or one hundred more will undoubtedly be carried. We believe that of all classes in the community artists are the only ones who do not beg for office, hence it becomes all men to encourage them, and to reward such unusual modesty by the most liberal patronage, and the bestowal upon them of "all most kindly offices."

LAW REPORTS.

An Offal Case—The Mayor and Manure.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Leonard.

The People ex rel. John Green vs. Fernando Wood.—In this case the Mayor refused to affix his signature to a warrant drawn in favor of Green for work done as remover of offal from the streets. The Mayor objected because, as he alleged, Green had been removed from office. The Relators then applied for a mandamus. The case was stated in the Times of Dec. 18, under the above head. The bulletin of the Court now contained a decision to the effect that the Mayor must strike out of his return all matters stated on information and belief.

An Estate in Remainder Without Takers—Revival of an Old Case.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Barnard.

Patrick Gibney, Administrator of Michael Murtage, Deceased, vs. John M. Mackay.—This action is brought to set aside a conveyance to the defendant of a house and lot in Orchard-street.

It appears that in 1818 Michael Murtage died, leaving considerable property, both real and personal, which he bequeathed in a will to his wife, Josina Murtage, for her life, and upon her death to persons whom he did not name in his writ. The Court gave effect to the life estate residing in the wife, but declared that as to any further disposition of his property the deceased died intestate.

The plaintiff now alleges that Mrs. Murtage took possession of the estate, and with a part of its proceeds purchased a house and lot in Orchard-street, and conveyed it, gratuitously, to the defendant, who is her nephew. That such conveyance being without a consideration, was a fraud upon the heirs at law of the deceased, who would become entitled to the property upon the death of Mrs. Murtage, inasmuch as it operated to destroy the estate.

The defendant denies that he received the property without a consideration, and alleges that he paid for it the sum of $3,214. That Mrs. Murtage boarded in his family from May 1, 1834, to Oct. 23, 1845, when she died, aged 71 years. That the house was conveyed to the defendant for the purpose of paying him for such board, and it was a bona fide transaction.

The case was once before tried before Wm. Inglis, Esq., referee.

The Court, however, reversed this judgment and ordered a new trial, which is now being had. The case is still on.

Francis Byrne for plaintiff; A. Thompson for defendant.

Rights of Aliens—Power to Convey Real Estate.

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Judges Robertson and White.

J. Watts De Peyster, Appellant, vs. Wm. W. Van Ness, Anthony J. Bleecker & Co. et al.—This is an appeal from a judgment rendered at Special Term of the Court dismissing the complaint.

The plaintiff brings this action to set aside a contract of sale of four lots of land on One Hundred and Twelfth and One Hundred and Thirteenth streets, in the City of New-York. The land was bid off by the plaintiff, at an auction sale at the Merchants' Exchange, and 10 per cent. of the purchase money paid to the auctioneers, Messrs. Bleecker, Son & Co. The plaintiff makes Messrs. Bleecker, Son & Co. parties, defendants, and demands an injunction, restraining them from paying over the 10 per cent. to the defendant Van Ness, and that they be required to pay the money into Court. The plaintiff claims, as ground for relief, that the defendant Van Ness had no title to the lands.

The title comes through a sale, upon the foreclosure of a mortgage of one Connor, to Archibald Watt, which was assigned to James Watt, Jr. The equity of redemption in two of the lots had been transferred to Smith T. Weyant.

On the foreclosure sale the land was bought by Daniel Lord, Esq., who took the Sheriff's deed. Three years afterwards Mr. Lord executed and recorded an instrument, reciting that the property was bought in by the agent of Watt, in the name of Mr. Lord, for the ultimate benefit of Watt, in part payment of the amounts due on the bonds and mortgages, and covenanting that he, Mr. Lord, would allow the agents of James Watt to let and demise the premises, and receive the rents; and that he would, at the request of Watt, convey the premises to any person by him designated, and would execute deeds of sale by the agents of Watt, and allow them to receive the proceeds thereof.

The land was sold and conveyed by Mr. Lord to John Ward, Jr., and by Ward sold to Robert H. Bleakie, and a deed of Bleakie was tendered to the plaintiff as giving a good title.

The plaintiff refused to take the title, on the ground that there was no request by Watt to Mr. Lord to convey to John Ward, Jr. The defendants proved the request of Mr. Watt, which was presented to the attorney for the plaintiff. James Watt, Jr., was an alien. The Judge at Special term dismissed the complaint.

On this appeal the following are some of the points taken by the appellant:

1. That the appellant was entitled to a clear and unquestionable title to the premises, and if there was any reasonable doubt about the title proposed to be given, he was not bound to accept it.

2. James Watt, for whose benefit, and in whose interest alone Mr. Lord purchased and held the property in question, although an alien, was competent to take and hold the mortgage, upon the foreclosure of which the decree was made upon which the sale took place. James Watt did become the purchaser at the Sheriff's sale, and the Sheriff's deed was given to Mr. Lord, for his benefit only, and no valid trust being declared in it, or in any instrument executed contemporaneously with it, an apparent legal title vested in Mr. Lord, under the Revised Statutes, subject to be defeated by creditors. By the grant or declaration of uses executed by Mr. Lord on the 4th of March, 1857, an absolute title to the premises vested in James Watt, the same as if a conveyance had been made directly to him by Mr. Lord, because it declares that the premises were bought at the sale by the agent of James Watt, for his "ultimate benefit."

3. That the grant or declaration of uses specially gives James Watt, the beneficiary, the exclusive possession of the premises, by allowing his agents to let and demise the lands and to receive the rents thereof. Thus it is claimed that Watt is by this grant or declaration of uses "entitled to the actual possession of the lands, and to the receipt of the rents and profits," and is declared to be the exclusive beneficial owner, and is put in possession through his agent, and no lawful trust, nor any active trust of any sort, being declared in Mr. Lord, Watt is in law deemed to have a legal estate therein of the same quality and duration, and subject to the same condition as his beneficial interest, and that is an absolute estate in fee simple. (1 Rev. Stat., 727 §§ 47, 48, 49, 58, 59.)

Mr. Lord's conveyance, therefore, to John Ward conveyed no title to him, and the title proposed to be given to the appellant on the purchase was through that deed only, and included no deed from Watt in whom the legal title was. The appellant, if he had accepted it, would have acquired no title at all, not even one of a questionable character. Besides, if Watt himself had conveyed, the title derived through him would have been subject to be disturbed for his alienage; as the prerogative right of forfeiture is not barred by alienation, and it must be taken subject to the right of the Government to seize the land. (2 Kent, 61.) Especially is this the rule, as no one could claim as a bona fide purchase, the grant or declaration of uses having been recorded March 27, 1857.

The respondents, however, set up that the covenant of Mr. Lord was not entitled to be recorded, it being neither a conveyance power or declaration.

2. The title was absolute in Mr. Lord and no action of ejectment by the State would lie for the possession of the land. In case it be said that the conveyance to him was an evasion of the laws relative to escheat, the remedy of the State would be a proceeding in Equity against him to recover the proceeds of the land. Decision reserved.

Charles E. Whitehead, for plaintiff; John Sherwood, for defendants.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Daly.

J. P. S. Simon vs. Edward Phalon.—The plaintiff brings this action to recover of Mr. Phalon the sum of $300, alleged to be due him under a contract made in February, 1858, providing as follows: The plaintiff was to deliver to the defendant a number of receipes for making different kinds of perfume, and the defendant was to employ plaintiff for two years, at $15 per week for the first year, and $20 per week for the second, and to give plaintiff $300 at the expiration of that time; or should he discharge him during the second year, the $300 was to be paid at such time.

The plaintiff was discharged during the second year, but did not get his $300 as per contract; hence the action.

The defendant denies that the plaintiff performed his part of the contract, alleging that he did not deliver the recipes until nearly eleven months after it was made, and then but about half the number agreed upon. He also sets up that the plaintiff was unskillful, and ignorant of the business of perfumery, and that for these reasons, and in consequence of plaintiff's lack of skill and want of knowledge, the defendant was also subjected to a loss of several thousand dollars.

Defendant, testifying in his own behalf, stated that nearly all the articles manufactured by plaintiff had to be recompounded, and that 7,000 pounds of fancy soap had to be thus repacked and put up again. Defendant thinks he lost about $10,000 by the experiment. The case is still on.

E. W. Dodge for defendant.

Matrimony and Money—The Misfortunes of a Married Woman.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Justice Woodruff.

Elizabeth J. Van Eeton vs. Camille C. Runmage.—This case was stated under the above heading, in the Times of the 14th inst., since which date it has been on trial. It will be remembered that the plaintiff claimed that the defendant had about $20,000 of her money on a loan, obtained some years since, which he had neglected to repay.

The defendant set up that he had borrowed the money of the plaintiff's husband, and never before heard that it was her money. Having no notice that it was her money, and having obtained it of the husband, he objected that he was not responsible to her for the sum.

The Court now ordered a non-suit, thus leaving the plaintiff without redress.

Practice—Alleged Usury.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Welles.

Mechlen et al. vs. Doty.—This action was upon a check payable thirty days after date, made by one Gurney, and indorsed by defendant, for $165.

The answer set up usury, among other defences, by stating that the defendant borrowed the check from one Gurney, and paid him nothing therefor. That the plaintiff, at the time of the receipt of the same from defendant, purchased the same of him at a usurious rate of interest, to wit, for the sum of $163, that being at a greater rate of interest than seven per cent. per annum for the loan or forbearance of the sum of $165 for the time the check had to run before it became due and payable.

The plaintiff objected to the defendants' giving any evidence of usury, on the ground that the answer did not allege that there was an intention on the part of plaintiff to take usury.

The Court sustained the objection, and postponed the trial to give defendant an opportunity to apply at Special Term for leave to amend.

H. H. Moranaf for plaintiffs; G. S. Walker for defendant.

Court of General Sessions.

CONVICTION FOR FELONIOUS ASSAULT.

In this Court, yesterday, before Judge McCunn, the prisoner Townsend, in whose case the Jury had returned at 11 o'clock on the previous night a verdict of guilty of felonious assault, was remanded for sentence.

STOLE CLOTHING AND WAS FURNISHED WITH A HOME.

Margaret O'Brien, indicted for grand larceny, in stealing a silk dress of the value of $30, pleaded guilty of petty larceny, and was sent to the City Prison for three months.

BROKE IN, BUT WON'T BREAK OUT.

George Stevens, indicted for burglary, pleaded guilty in the second degree, and was sent to Sing Sing for five years, with the admonition to behave better when he comes out.

ANOTHER IN THE SAME BOX.

Archibald Sullivan, indicted for burglary, pleaded guilty in the third degree, and was sent to Sing Sing for two years and two months.

"DIDN'T KNOW THE BILL WAS BAD."

John Riley, indicted for forgery, in passing counterfeit money, was next put to the bar. The District-Attorney, stating that there was great doubt whether the prisoner knew the bill was bad at the time of passing it, moved his discharge, and the prisoner went on his way rejoicing.

AN INNOCENT RECEIVER OF STOLEN GOODS.

Dietman Steinmetz, indicted for receiving stolen goods, was next put to the bar.

Mr. Crowel testified that on the 6th and 8th of October last, about $20 worth of Russian bristles were missed from his store; he has missed similar articles for the last five years; he has since seen some of the stolen property at the Police-court; for the last eight years Henry Hennecke has been a porter in the store of the witness. The prisoner is a shoemaker.

Henry Hennecke testified that he had been porter in the store of the last witness; he had seen the prisoner in the store often during the last five years: witness stole the bristles in question and took them to the store of the prisoner who bought them at a little less than half their value; witness had stolen and sold to the prisoner in a similar manner a dozen times during the last five years, in all about $150 worth.

Officer Slowey testified that he had been employed to detect the thief of the property which Mr. Crowel from time to time missed. He saw the last witness come out of the store Monday evening with a bundle under his arm, which he took to the prisoner's store. Witness followed and arrested both parties, just as the prisoner was receiving the stolen property.

Peter Odell, for the defence, testified that the prisoner bore a good character.

Frederick W. Diedrich also gave him a good character. Several other witnesses testified to the same.

John Zimmer testified that he was in the employ of the prisoner, and was present when Hennecke sold the bristles to the prisoner; several persons were present at the same time; some one asked Hennecke how he came by the bristles, and he replied that he was a dealer in them.

There were no further witnesses, and the Jury, without leaving their seats and almost without consultation, rendered a verdict of acquittal, and the prisoner was discharged.

A GUILTY RECEIVER.

Patrick Constantine, indicted for receiving stolen goods, was next tried.

John Martin testified that some gloves, porte-monnaies, &c., were stolen from his store. He subsequently saw the articles at the Station-house.

Officer Felman testified that he arrested the prisoner at his house on the 5th of February; at the same time he arrested four boys; one of the boys said to the prisoner, who denied that he had the things: "Yes you have; you bought them of me, and told me to get more;" the prisoner, however, persisted in his denial; subsequently the witness went to the house of the prisoner, whose wife gave him a part of the stolen property.

Peter Jerome, one of the boys mentioned by the Officer, testified—That he was twelve years old, and is in the Juvenile Asylum. He narrated the circumstances of the sale of the stolen articles by himself and the other boys to the prisoner, who only paid a few cents for them.

William Bohn, another one of the boys, of the same age as the last one, repeated the same story.

There were no further witnesses, except a few as to the character of the prisoner. The jury then took the case and gave a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was remanded for sentence.

A FARCE INSTEAD OF A TRIAL.

Louis Larome, indicted for felonious assault upon Pietre Orgardi. The circumstances of this case were very recently published in the public prints. It seems that a French woman by the name of Hess, having a thriving business as laundress, at first transferred a part of it, with the gains thereof, to the prisoner. But at length finding a more congenial avocation than that of purifying the dirty linen of mankind, gave up the latter pursuit, but continued to have his own clothes washed by his former employer, who also performed the same office for Orgardi. Between these rival patrons of the modern Nausicaa, that lady became a source of mutual anger. Larome for a time seems to have enjoyed a monopoly of the sunshine in which he basked. But at length becoming convinced that the object of his heart's adoration was faithless to him, and shared her affection with his foe, he proceeded, armed, to her abode, where, finding in one embrace the objects of his love and his hate, he drew a pistol and fired on his foe. For this offence he was was now on trial. A more exact account of which was rendered a reportorial impossibility by the manner of its conduct on the prisoners' behalf. Mr. Legendre, a French lawyer, appeared for the defence, which he conducted in such a manner, as at length to induce the Court to suggest that he call in the assistance of some member of the Bar, of whom there were many present. With a pertinacity which had already turned the trial into an utter farce, the counsel refused all aid, and produced a law tome, from which he proceeded to read authorities which he said would occupy the attention of the Court for two hours. At this point, however, Mr. Beals, the Agent of the Prisoners' Reform Association, addressed the Court as amicus curiæ, and said that he thought it only the part of humanity for the Court to assign some counsel to assist in the defence, inasmuch as it was evident that the representative of the prisoner was not competent to conduct the trial, and moreover appeared to have been eating or drinking something which disarranged what talents, if any, he might otherwise have. Mr. Legendre replied that he did not regard that impertinent individual, and moreover that he felt insulted by the suggestion of the Court. Judge McCunn explained that he did not wish or design to hurt the feelings of the counsel, but it was his duty to protect the prisoner's rights, and he therefore renewed his advice that the counsel call in Judge Stewart, who was well skilled and competent to aid, or some other gentleman, as adviser in the case.

The counsel, however, still refused, and proceeded to read from his books, when coming to the conclusion that he could not proceed, he stated that he was very sick, and asked for an adjournment of the case.

To this, of course, the District-Attorney would not consent, and the Court declared that it had no power to adjourn the hearing.

At this time some one in the audience induced the prisoner himself to ask the Court to assign him additional counsel, when the Judge, feeling that his duty would no longer permit him to refuse, asked Judge Stewart to perform the service required. That gentleman responded with generous alacrity, and Legendre, with a great flourish, passed the papers in the case over to his client, and, with his books under one arm and his hat under the other, bolted out in apparent dudgeon, without so much as a parting smile.

As justice could not possibly result from a trial thus begun, by agreement between Judge Stewart and Mr. Anthon, a juror was withdrawn, and the further disposition of the case was postponed.

Among the most ludicrous happenings during the progress of the trial was the testimony of several French and Italian doctors, as to the prisoner's sanity. One of these, upon cross-examination, said he had graduated at the University in Pavia, but could not tell what degree he had at that time received, as unfortunately his diploma was not in his pocket. He stated that he had left Italy for political reasons; but upon further inquiry he said that he came in company with another man's wife, and continued to live with her for some years after her arrival here. He stated, as evidences of the prisoner's insanity, that he had water on the brain, "between the skull and the enveloping membrane." He could not tell the name of the bone under which the water was; nor indeed of any bone of the head. He could not tell how many bones there were in the skull, any nearer than the indefinite number "a good many." He also spoke of a "cartilage" in the prisoner's eye, which he gave in three languages—French, English and Italian. He described it as a "small spot growing over the eye." To cap the climax, he located a "pulmonary distemper in the prisoner's abdomen," and then left the stand.

This trial has not had its parallel in the memory of "the oldest member." At its close, the prisoner, a little excitable Frenchman, produced from a tin box which he carried, a picture of his heart's idol, and a lock of her hair, both of which he pressed with frantic energy to his ribs, and exclaimed, "Oh, how I loved her, but now she is perjure.

The Court adjourned to this morning to listen to motions and pass sentences.

United States Commissioners.

Before Commissioner Carroll.

ALLEGED ASSAULT AT SEA.

Stephen Mitchell, one of the crew of the ship Conqueror, who was sent home by the American Consul at Liverpool, charged with assaulting the mate with a knife, was yesterday examined by United States Commissioner Carroll.

Wm. H. Addison, the boatswain, who was also sent home by the Consul as a witness, was sworn, and testified that Mitchell complained of being sick, but the captain ordered him from below, and directed the mate to trice him up in the rigging. Mitchell cut the lanyard with his knife, and refused to be confined. Some miscellaneous blows were also exchanged in the scuffle. The man acted generally on the defensive. He did not cut the mate. The ship leaked badly, and required all hands at the pumps. Mitchell had always behaved well. Adjourned to Monday.

Friday, March 15—P. M.

Speculation on the Stock Exchange, to-day, is unusually dull on the Railway Shares. There is no organized or decided movement either way. The orders that came into the Board of Brokers to buy for the rise are barely sufficient to induce caution on the part of the inside jobbers in putting out cash sales or contracts for the decline. But the demand altogether on the Share list is too inconsiderable to create a substantial interest, for the moment, in the course of the market. On the other hand, there is a renewed and quite strong inquiry for the Federal Stocks, of all classes, and also for Treasury paper, apparently with a view to the employment of Money, which neither the Banks nor other moneyed corporations, such as Insurance, Trust and Savings offices, nor private lenders, can place on first-class trade paper, because of its comparative scarcity. A number of out-of-town orders for these Stocks are daily received from New-England and from the near Southern cities. The price of the Coupon Fives of 1874 went up to 89@89½ ⅌ cent., and the new Coupon Sixes to 93¾@94 ⅌ cent., while the new Registered Stock, carrying four months more interest, sold at 95¾@95⅞ ⅌ cent. The Texas Indemnity Five ⅌ Cents sold at 91½ ⅌ cent. Treasury paper is firm at 8@8½ ⅌ cent. per annum. The same feeling of firmness extends to the leading Railway Mortgages, with another advance of 2@2½ ⅌ cent. on Erie thirds and fourths, the former selling this afternoon at 90 ⅌ cent. ex-dividend. The February return of the traffic on the road is well calculated to increase public confidence in all the Bonded Securities of the Company, and at anything like the same ratio of earnings through the year, the third mortgage, standing behind a prior lien of only $7,000,000, is quite equal to the second, and the fourth nearly as well assured of the punctual payment of interest under the new organization. The common shares of the Company are also firmer since the February return. The Mortgages of the Michigan Southern have improved 1@1½ ⅌ cent. The Seconds, which carry 14 ⅌ cent. overdue and fundable coupons, have been selling of late much below their intrinsic worth, as measured by the current business of the road. They begin to recover on the eve of the annual report of the Board of Directors, which, it is said, will show a net profit for the year of about $250,000 over the whole interest charge, including the cost of carrying forward the unfunded debt, which, by good management, under the present administration, has been reduced to the rate of 7 ⅌ cent. ⅌ annum. The Construction Mortgage of the Illinois Central has advanced to 98¾ ⅌ cent. In State Stocks the offerings to-day were rather ahead of the demand, and prices ¼@½ ⅌ cent. weaker than yesterday on the sales made, but closing steady.

The Railway Shares vary but slightly from Thursday's sales. Early in the day the signs were of a firmer market, but the orders at the Board proving quite moderate on most of the leading Roads, like New-York Central, Galena, &c., the prices were a fraction weaker at the close of the first session, and barely steady at the Second Board. As on yesterday, the principal exceptions in favor of firmness was Michigan Southern. There was a continued demand for both classes of the Stock, and no great disposition on the part of sellers to run short of either. Pacific Mail was firm at 85¾@86 ⅌ cent. Illinois Central, Galena, Toledo and Rock Island somewhat tame, without much variation in price.

Later in the afternoon there was a somewhat improved demand for the Railways, and less disposition to sell. Buyers advanced their bids on New York Central to the closing price of yesterday—78½ ⅌ cent. The other closing quotations were about as follows:

Central	78⅛	Mich. Guaranteed	36¾
Erie	32⅝	Michigan Southern	16½
Illinois Central	80¾	Mich. Central	57¾
Rock Island	58½	Hudson	44½
Galena	70¾	Reading	43½
Toledo	34⅝	Harlem Preferred	38¾

The upward indications of yesterday in the Foreign Exchange market were followed to-day by a general advance of ½ ⅌ cent. on London, the standard Bankers going up to 106½, and transient Bank and select Merchant bills done at 106@106½ ⅌ cent. A fair business was done for Saturday's mail, the asking rate closing firm with nearly all the leading houses. On account of the high rate of interest in London, the short-sight rates advanced to 107¾@108 ⅌ cent. A good part of the demand for the present mail is for the reimbursement of the English Gold delivered yesterday by the Etna, and the larger amount advised as on the Arabia. There was no news to the close of 'Change hour from the missing steamer Australasian, now in her twenty-seventh day, and much inconvenience is likely to ensue from the non-receipt of her mails, which cover a large amount of March Coupons, sent forward for collection.

We learn that nearly all the London holders of the Erie Second Mortgage, advertised to be paid off in cash, have availed of the alternative of the 20 years' extension, and the Company are also advised that about $200,000 have been voluntarily extended by the German holders at Frankfort and Liepsic.

A sale of Bank of Republic shares at 114 ⅌ cent. at the Stock Exchange was accidentally misprinted in yesterday's report at 104 ⅌ cent.

Mr. Thomas E. Browne, who lost his seat some time since by temporary suspension on his contracts, was to-day readmitted to membership at the Stock Exchange.

Referring to the weather, and the receipts of Produce at Chicago, Wells' Chicago Commercial Express, of Thursday, says: "One swallow does not make a Summer, nor does a February thaw bring all the delights of Spring. The weather, for the first twelve days of this month, was cold enough for midwinter, and the harbor actually froze over Sunday night with tough strong ice, which did not break up until Tuesday. This cold snap shut up the Canal as tight as it was in January, and though it is ten days since the levels were filled, five boat loads of corn make the sum total of arrivals at Chicago. But now the weather is moderating, and another week will change everything. Last week gave us a small aggregate of grain, only a quarter of a million, and probably the smallest total which we shall have to record until the Winter comes round again. It is always darkest just before day, and our grain receipts always run the smallest just before the Spring movement commences."

The Press and Tribune, of Chicago, remarks: "All throughout the northwest the farmers are busy preparing the soil for the Spring crops, and it is fully expected that the seed will be got into the ground early. The Winter Wheat throughout the central and southern portions of the State looks unusually well, and much less has been Winter-killed than for three years past. In Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, the reports are all of a favorable character." The receipts and shipments of produce at Chicago for the last week were as follows:

IRON—The demand has been mainly for Scoth Pig, 250 tons of which have been reported sold at $21@$23, chiefly within the range, ⅌ ton, usual credit.

LEAD—Has been in slack request at irregular rates.

LIME—Rockland, $1 for Common, and $1 25 for Lump, ⅌ bbl.

MOLASSES—Sales have been confined to 100 bbls. New-Orleans, part at 33c.; 30 hhds. Porto Rico at 28c.@29c., and a small lot of Cuba Muscovado at 23c. ⅌ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—The demand for Turpentine has been quite tame, at $2 65@$2 70 for Crude ⅌ 280 ℔s.; and 35½c.@37c. for Spirits, ⅌ gallon. Tar has been inactive, at $2 25@$2 56¼ ⅌ bbl. Resin has been in slack request, including Common, at $1 20@$1 25 ⅌ 310 ℔s.

OILS—A fair inquiry prevails for Linseed, at 60c.@62c. ⅌ gallon; but other descriptions appear inactive.

PROVISIONS—Pork is depressed and unsettled. Sales 200 bbls., in lots, at $16 75@$17 for Mess; $16 50 for thin Mess, and $12 50@$12 75 for prime, ⅌ bbl. Hogs are attracting more attention, including Live at 5¾c.@6c., and Dressed at 6½c.@7c. ⅌ ℔. Cut Meats are moderately inquired for at 8c.@8¾c. for Hams, and 6½c.@6¾c. for Shoulders, ⅌ ℔. The Cincinnati Price Current, of the 13th instant, says: "The demand for the various articles in the provision line has been quite moderate during the week, and the market ruled dull and heavy, and prices gradually declined. There has been a large amount of country cured offered, chiefly bulk pork, and it met with a pretty good demand, chiefly from city dealers, who bought on speculation, but toward the close this demand ceased, and the market became quite heavy, and prices merely nominal. In the fore part of the week, Mess Pork was held at $17@$17 25 for country, and city, and some 1,500 bbls. sold at the former rate, country packed but delivered here. At the close $16 75 was the outside rate obtainable for the best brands, and not much demand even at that rate. However, in the absence of sales, the closing prices must be regarded nominal. The demand for Bacon has been quite light, and the market ruled dull all the week, and prices gradually declined from day to day, though the amount offered has not been large, but, nevertheless, in excess of the demand, and the market closes very dull at 7c., 9¼c., 9¾c. and 10¼c. for shoulders, sides, clear rib and clear sides, at which rates about 240 hhds. sold Monday and yesterday. Sugar-cured Hams sell at 11c. In bulk meats there was a large business done, in the early part of the week country packers being anxious to realize, and about 3,000,000 ℔s. sold at 6½c.@6¾c. for shoulders; 8¼c.@8¾c. for light to heavy sides, and 9¼c. for clear sides, but this demand fell off, and sales could not be made at the close without making a concession of ¼c.. which holders did not seem disposed to do, and we did not hear of a sale of importance yesterday or Monday, so that the closing rates must be regarded nominal, at 6½c.@8⅜c. and 9¼c., which were the rates asked. Lard ruled extremely dull, and the demand quite limited at 8¾c.@9c., it being difficult to sell at over 8¾c. for the best city rendered. Keg is dull, at 9¾c.@10c., and the demand quite limited. Head and Gut Lard is dull at 8c.@8½c. Not yet having the full returns from Chicago and Milwaukee, we are compelled to put off the publication of our statement another week."

RICE—Sales have been made of 150 tierces, in lots, at from $3 62½@$4 25 ⅌ 100 ℔s.

SEEDS—Holders of the principal kinds of domestic are firm, and the available supplies of prime are quite moderate. The demand, however, is restricted. Calcutta Linseed has declined to $1 70 ⅌ bushel, at Boston, and it closes heavily.

SUGARS—The demand has been mainly for refining, to-day. The reported sales reach 1,700 hhds., chiefly Cuba, at 4¾c.@5¼c.; with 112 boxes Havana, at 5½c.@5¾c. ⅌ ℔.

TALLOW—We have heard of sales of 35,000 ℔s., at 9¾c.@9⅝c. ⅌ ℔.

TEAS—The public sale of Blacks, to-day, was well attended, and as the bidding was spirited, very full prices were realized for the lots which were disposed of, including Oolongs (principally low and medium grades, new crop) at 10c.@31½c.; Souchong, 22c.@44c.; Powchong, at 35c.; and Orange Pekoe, at 23½c. ⅌ ℔.

TIN—The transactions, since our last, have been unimportant. Prices are unsettled.

TOBACCO—Has been in fair request, and sales have been reported of 374 cases Seed Leaf, at 4c.@10c.; 216 bales Havana, at 38c.@55c.; and 239 bales Yara, on private terms, ⅌ ℔.

WHISKY—Has been in brisk request, at firmer rates. Sales 1,400 bbls., at 17¼c.@17½c. ⅌ gallon.

FREIGHTS—Have been depressed, and rates have been tending downward. For Liverpool—Flour, 3s. 4½d.@3s. 6d., ⅌ bbl.; Wheat, in bulk and bags, 11½d.@12d.; Corn, 11¼@11¾d. ⅌ bush.; Cotton, 11-32d.@⅜d. ⅌ ℔.; Resin, 3s. 6d. ⅌ 310 ℔s.; Cheese. NEWS OF THE DAY.

The policy of the Administration in regard to Fort Sumpter is not yet promulgated in any shape which may be deemed official, though little doubt remains in the public mind at Washington that an evacuation has been determined upon. When it will take place, however, is wholly a matter of conjecture—though some of the correspondents insist that the necessary order has already been forwarded to Major Anderson. The opinion that the fortress will soon be in their peaceful possession now generally prevails among the Charlestonians, and even the Mercury receives it with confidence. President Lincoln called another special meeting of the Cabinet yesterday morning, at which Gen. Scott and Gen. Totten—the latter the head of the Engineer Corps—were present. It is presumed that the subject under discussion related to the Southern fortifications.

There is very little new to report about the appointments. Mr. Corwin has not yet either declined or accepted the Mission to Mexico. There is no doubt, however, that should he conclude to accept it, he will be unanimously confirmed by the Senate. The President, yesterday, sent to the Senate the nomination of Elijah Crosby—formerly of New-York, but now of California—as Minister to Guatemala, and it is understood that the Cabinet agreed upon Mr. Holloway of Indiana as Commissioner of Patents. Relative to New-York appointments there is nothing new whatever.

An interesting and exciting scene occurred in the Senate yesterday, in which Mr. Douglas figured in a manner which will hardly be thought to be creditable to him. Mr. Mason, of Virginia, offered a resolution of inquiry relative to the militia of the District of Columbia, and the service in which they had been employed by the Government, which was laid over, its immediate consideration being objected to. Mr. Douglas then called for the consideration of his resolution, offered on Wednesday, making inquiries in regard to the fortifications in the seceded States, and proceeded to make a speech censuring the Republican Senators for their silence regarding the policy of the Administration. He was replied to by Messrs. Fessenden, of Maine, Wilson, of Massachusetts, Hale, of New-Hampshire, and others, and finally lost his temper, and consequently the best of the argument. Nothing else was done in open session.

The first case of real difficulty growing out of the absence of United States Collectors at some of the Southern ports, occurred on Thursday, and resulted in the seizure of the schooner Restless at this port, from Havana. The Collector at Mobile refusing, as a United States officer, to exchange a coasting license for a register, in order to permit that vessel to go to Havana for a cargo, the Captain "protested." The Spanish Consul countersigned his document, and he then proceeded on his voyage. At this port Collector Schell seized the vessel for violation of the laws. The facts of the case have been sent to the Secretary of the Treasury, who, it is believed, will remit the penalty incurred.

A dispatch from Montgomery states that a bill has been introduced in the "Congress" of the C. S. A., to establish a Court of Admiralty at Vicksburgh, Miss A canard has been set afloat at the Capital of the new "Confederacy," to the effect that five United States war vessels left this port on Tuesday night last, fully suppled with men, ordnance, arms and munitions, destined for some Southern port.

In the New-York State Senate, yesterday, there were reported favorably Mr. Manierre's bill for constructing a basin in front of the Battery for the accommodation of Staten Island Ferries, Police and Revenue barges; Mr. Murphy's bill to establish a Nautical School in New-York Harbor; to incorporate the Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Among the bills passed was that incorporating the New-York Navigation and Colonization Society. Mr. Spinola introduced a new License bill, fixing the license at from $30 to $250 Mr. Murphy reported a bill appropriating $150,000 for the erection of a Woman's Hospital. In the Assembly, the New-York City Tax Levy was presented and referred to the Committee on Cities and Villages, and subsequently, to the City delegation in connection with the City Loan Bill, and the bill to provide for deficiencies by erroneous assessments, with power to report completely. Mr. Shaw introduced a bill amending the charter of the City, giving the appointment of Street Commissioner to the Mayor and Comptroller. Mr. Pierce introduced a bill authorizing country Judges to be summoned to preside in Criminal Courts in New-York City. The Supply Bill as it came from the Committee of the Whole was debated. The sum of $500 each for expenses of Peace Commissioners was stricken out, also $1,948 47 for "Weed, Parsons & Co. printing Marriage Bonds," by order of Gideon J. Tucker, late Secretary of State. The bill was finally ordered to a third reading.

The California Pony Express passed Fort Kearney yesterday afternoon, with advices from San Francisco to the afternoon of the 2d instant. The steamer Cortez left for Panama on the 1st, with the mails and passengers, and $689,000 for New-York. Politics engrossed the principal attention in California. The Chairman of the Breckinridge State Committee had issued a call for a meeting of that body at Sacramento on the 20th, to consider the condition of national affairs. He accompanies the call with a series of resolutions to be acted upon, looking to the eventual establishment of a Pacific nationality. The Senatorial question had not been decided by the Legislature.

A large audience of ladies and gentlemen gathered at the City Assembly Rooms last evening, to witness the presentation of a stand of colors to the Sixty-ninth Regiment, and a sword to Col. Corcoran, its commander, as a public indorsement of his action in refusing to parade with his regiment on the occasion of the reception of the Prince of Wales. Owing to illness, Col. Corcoran was unable to be present, but he sent a letter deputing Quartermaster Tully to act in his place. Andrew V. Stout presided, and opened the meeting with a brief address, in which he indorsed to the fullest extent the conduct of Col. Corcoran on the occasion alluded to, and indulged in some not very complimentary remarks towards the British Crown. The sword was presented by Mr. J. W. Chandler in a speech, which was replied to by Quartermaster Tully; after which Thos. Francis Meagher presented the stand of colors, accompanying the presentation with an eloquent speech, to which Lieut.-Col. Nugent replied.

At about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out in the factory of the American Hoop Skirt Company, No. 106 Orange-street, Brooklyn, resulting in the immediate death of a young woman named Susan Wilson, daughter of William Wilson, and the serious injury of Miss Anna Treanor, a room-mate of deceased. Miss Wilson and Miss Treanor were cut off from the stairway by the fire, and in the excitement of the moment, Miss Wilson leaped from a window in the fifth story to the yard below, and was instantly killed. Miss Treanor swooned as she reached the window, and the fire having been speedily extinguished, she was rescued alive, and hopes are entertained of her recovery.

United States Commissioner Carroll, yesterday, commenced the examination of the sailor Stephen Mitchell, who was returned by the American Consul from Liverpool, charged with assaulting the mate of the ship in which he sailed. The testimony of the only witness—the boatswain—showed that the sailor acted generally on the defensive, and did not injure the mate.

An interesting case was yesterday argued before the General Term of the Superior Court, involving the rights of aliens in respect to the transfer of real estate. At Chambers of the Supreme Court, a case was brought on which is based upon the provisions of a will made in 1818, and in which the Court has before held that an estate in remainder left to remainder-men not named or indicated, cannot vest, and that such a bequest, upon the expiration of the life estate, is void, and in respect to it the decedent died intestate. At Chambers of the Supreme Court, Justice Leonard has ordered the Mayor to strike out of his return to the mandamus in the "Offal case," all matters stated on information and belief. In the General Sessions there were one conviction and one acquittal on a charge of receiving stolen goods. Several pleas were taken, and the rest of the day was occupied in the trial of Louis Larome, for felonious assault. On account of the incompetency of the prisoner's counsel, the trial was abandoned, and the disposition of the case postponed.

There was a good demand yesterday for Federal securities, at advancing rates, and the Railway mortgages were also firmer. But afterward the Stock Exchange was dull, the Share speculation being tamer than usual. There was a rise of ¼ ℘ cent. in Bills on London, to 106@106¼ ℘ cent.

The demand for Flour, Wheat and Corn was quite active yesterday, and prices generally advanced. The improvement in the market for Sterling Exchange, and the decline in freights, favorably affected the trade. Cotton was quiet and somewhat less buoyant. The transactions in Coffee, Molasses, Hides, Leather, Metals, Naval Stores, Fish, Seeds, Rice and Provisions were restricted. Sugars, Teas, Whisky, Hay and Adamantine Candles attracted more attention. Hops, Tallow and Tobacco were in request. The principal changes in family marketing were a partial rise in prices of good to prime Poultry, and a slight decline in Eggs, which latter were arriving freely. Supplies of most other articles were fair.

The Finances of the Confederated States.

The weakness of the Confederated States in their finances, is shown by the fact that the proceeds of a special tax is mortgaged for the payment of their first loan. This is the common resort of a slip-shod, thriftless nation, and a confession that the ordinary revenues, and, in fact, its future faith, is not to be relied on. Hence its action is to be tied up for a given period. But all such agreements are not only worthless in themselves, but are a confession of weakness tending more than anything else to destroy its credit. The tax may be repealed any day. A sovereign State is not to be impleaded in courts of justice, if we except the magnanimous State of Mississippi, which has allowed herself to be summoned to the bar of her own courts, at the same time repudiating the solemn judgments which these tribunals rendered against her.

If these States commence by mortgaging the best source of revenue for their first loan, what is to guarantee the second, that must speedily follow? To set up business in a respectable style, they must have three such loans before the year is out. Governments, these days, are costly luxuries, especially when whatever constitutes national strength has to be purchased, as at the South. The Confederated States must play no secondary rôle. If they persist, they must necessarily assume an antagonism to the Federal Government—a first-class power. Their naval and military preparations must be on a larger scale even, to compensate for their inferior strength. Their cardinal idea and impulse, the development and extension of African Slavery, must bring them in hostile relations to every powerful Government in Europe. A nation must be strong that defies the moral sense of mankind. No nation ever did so but it fell. The most military power of Europe found this moral sense was stronger than all its arms and valor.

To carry on such a warfare, can the money be borrowed? Certainly not. Not a cent can be had outside its borders. The fact that two of the States composing this Confederacy have repudiated in a most aggravating manner, their own debts, and that the President of this Confederacy was the earnest and consistent advocate of repudiation in his own State, forever shut it out of the money markets of other States, and from every place where a dishonest man may not show his face. The loans, if made at all, must be made at home.

There are several serious obstacles in the way here. In the first place, there is but very little accumulated means at the South. They have property—lands and negroes—but very little money. Those who have it can do better by lending it at eight per cent. It is one of the most difficult things to get the Southern people to put money into securities issued for construction of their roads. Hence these have to be built chiefly with the proceeds of State and City Bonds. The course of trade between the North and South is full proof of this lack of ready means. A year's credit, so as to cover the next crop, has in almost every instance to be given. Were there plenty of money there, the Southern trader would avail himself of it, as he now does of that of the North.

This lack of money will be the first, but not the most serious obstacle to borrowing at home. The moneyed men at the South have from the first been opposed to secession. They know it to be all a pretence. As far as the safety of their property is concerned, they see that if secession is persisted in, they must bear the burdens. What they give will be wrung from them most unwillingly. They may be compelled, as in South Carolina, to subscribe to the loan, but this only strengthens their resistance. They detest demagogues of the Jefferson Davis and Toombs stripe, as much as we do at the North. They are at present overawed and sullenly silent, but are every day gaining strength, which will show itself as soon as an opportunity presents. They understand even better than we do at the North the unstable foundations of the new Government, which has not the least claim to exist by the expression of the popular will, and that the whole thing may be speedily subverted by dissensions among the parties to it. The thing has been too suddenly got up to be lasting. The facility displayed is at the expense of every solid quality upon which a permanent order of things is based. There will be no faith even in the South that any combination will be lasting. There are unmistakable evidences of irreconcilable differences in every quarter. Witness the insubordination of Gen. Houston in Texas, who refuses to recognize secession, and is arming for a fight on his own hook. To suppose a loan issued by a Government improvised under such conditions, will be willingly taken, is preposterous. The thing is hardly possible.

Contrast a society such as that of the South with that of the United States. With us the existing order of things is a growth, and in harmony both with our ideas and our aims. Its preservation is the pledge of our progress and welfare. Government is here generously sustained for the benefits it secures. All its wants are freely met from our overflowing wealth. The consciousness of strength saves us from the necessity of wasting our means by putting half of our male population in arms. This contrast will lead a large portion of the South to secede from the South. Under such circumstances, to suppose the South can sustain their excessive expenditures by loans is an absurdity. They may talk as much they choose about the eagerness of the public to take the present one. We do not believe it will be taken at all. If it is, it will be in imitation of the South Carolina forced loan, which can never be followed by a similar one. Then Southern gasconade and Southern Confederacies will come to an untimely end.

The Proposed Amendment to the Constitution.

The fifth article of the Constitution of the United States prescribes two modes in which amendments may be made to it. The first and simplest of these declares that, whenever two-thirds of both Houses of Congress shall deem it necessary, amendments may be submitted to the action of the States, and if the Legislatures or Conventions of three-fourths of the States approve the proposed amendments, they become parts of the Constitution. The other mode of amendment provides that, at the instance of two-thirds of the State Legislatures, Congress shall call a General Convention, whose proposed amendments must likewise be agreed to by three-fourths of the States.

The amendment proposed by Mr. Corwin, on behalf of the Committee of Thirty-three, and adopted by Congress, is to be submitted to the action of the States on the plan first above indicated. Having been agreed to by a two-third vote in each branch of Congress, it is now before the country for mature consideration, and if three-fourths of the State Legislatures, or State Conventions ratify it, it will become a part of the fundamental law. It is in the following words:

> Article 2. No amendment shall be made to the Constitution of the United States which will authorize or give to Congress the power to abolish or interfere, within any State, with the domestic institutions thereof, including that of persons held to service or labor by the laws of said State.

It is to be observed that this amendment proposes to add no new principle to the Constitution, but simply to render it unchangeable, in one important particular, without the consent of every State Neither is there anything new in the idea of making a particular feature of the Constitution perpetual, or giving a guarantee against alteration. In the original instrument the general rule for making amendments, with the consent of three-fourths of the States, is as above stated. But there were three exceptions to the rule inserted in a proviso to the fifth article as follows:

> "Provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate."

The clauses of the ninth section of the first article here referred to are, first, that permitting the importation of Slaves from Africa until 1808; and the other, or fourth clause referred to is that which declares that

> "No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken."

The last guarantee against change is that which secures to each State two Senators, without reference to territorial extent or population.

The first of the guarantees against change was for twenty years, and has expired long ago; the other two are still in existence, and will remain in perpetuity. Delaware, Rhode Island and Florida will never consent to surrender their equality of representation in the Senate with New-York; and the clause regulating the mode of levying taxes is adhered to with as much tenacity to-day as when it was adopted by the Senate.

The Committee of Thirty-three proposed another perpetual guarantee against change, still more important to the States and to the people than those which were provided for in the original Constitution. The toleration of the Slave-trade for twenty years, and the guarantee against change for that length of time, was a concession to South Carolina and Georgia, made by the other States with the utmost reluctance, accompanied with a sense of shame and humiliation. The guarantee of an equal representation to the States in the Senate was a concession to the jealousy and apprehension of the smaller States, and is in palpable conflict with the democratic principle of the equality of every citizen, since it gives to one hundred thousand men in Delaware the same power and influence in one branch of Congress that is conferred upon the four millions who inhabit New-York. The guarantee that no change shall be made in the mode of levying taxes, was intended to shield slaves from equal taxation with white persons, and is therefore indefensible on principles of rigid and simple justice. But the guarantee proposed by Mr. Corwin, that each State, great or small, Slave or Free, shall in perpetuity enjoy the exclusive right to manage its domestic affairs, uncontrolled by the Federal Government, is right in itself, and absolutely necessary to the maintenance of a union of States against the tendencies to consolidation. If no such thing as Slavery existed in this country, the proposed guarantee against centralization would still be necessary, and should on no account be dispensed with.

There are now nineteen Free States in the Union, and only fifteen Slave States, counting those which have attempted to resolve themselves out. The number of Free States is augmented almost yearly, while, aside from secession, the Slave States are in a way to become less numerous by emancipation; and in consequence of these obvious tendencies, the day is not distant when we may expect to see three-fourths of the States free; and in that event the Constitution might be changed, so as to authorize the Federal Government to abolish Slavery in the remaining States. There are those who look forward to this state of things with delight, and who would avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded to overthrow the hated institution. But have they considered that the Federal Government can never strike at Slavery in the Southern States without at the same time overthrowing the liberties of all the States? The same principle of constitutional construction which authorizes Federal interference with Slavery, would warrant interference with the free institutions of the States—with the laws of inheritance and alienation of property, with the relations of guardian and ward, parent and child, with marriage, and with religious rites.

We believe that there is no party or sect in the Union which desires to see these domestic institutions of the several States interfered with by the General Government; and nothing is more clear to us than that the retention of their management by the States is essential to the preservation of liberty. To confer upon the Central Government the powers of legislation upon these local concernments of the States would be, practically, to abolish the State Governments, and to destroy all the checks and balances of the Constitution. The right of secession is inadmissible, but the right of the States to regulate their domestic affairs in their own way, is a feature of first importance in our Republican system of Government.

It is to preserve this essential feature of our Constitution, and not to add anything new and untried, that Mr. Corwin and his colleagues of the Committee of Thirty-three proposed to amend that instrument. The amendment offered is eminently proper in itself, is as necessary to the interests of Freedom as of Slavery, and at the same time, its adoption would go far to soothe the excited public feeling of the South, strengthen the hands of the friends of Union, and restore peace and harmony to the country. We cannot imagine a solid objection to it, and it may be hoped that it will be ratified by all the States.

Illinois to Mississippi.

Owing to an unfavorable season the farmers of several counties in the State of Mississippi have for some weeks been in great straits for grains, and recent accounts from there demonstrate very clearly that not only inconvenience but absolute starvation has been the consequence. Appeals to the residents of their own State were in vain, and at last when necessity became imperious, a public meeting was called, and one Major Hawkins was deputed to go to the Northwest and procure in some way, and from any quarter, the needed aid.

The Major started on his mission, and in the course of time found himself at Springfield, Illinois, the home of the President of these, but not their United States. Of course, the outraged "Suckers" at once seized, bound, questioned, and tortured the cereal Envoy preparatory to an intimation that his room was preferable to his company. Had they done so, we esteem it no difficult task to find instances of parallel hospitality in the home of the Major, wherewith to justify the cruelty of the operation. But on the contrary, the gentleman was astounded by the kindly atmosphere that surrounded him from the moment of his arrival until the hour of his departure. He was dined and wined and made in sundry ways the recipient of the most unbounded hospitality. Subscription lists were started most liberally and continued in the same style until sufficient means were obtained to purchase 1,000 bushels of grain, sacks included, which were at once sent to the destitute and needy farmers of Mississippi, who have received them gratefully, and as yet evince no disposition to repudiate the tender.

The Major was astonished, and being a man of shrewd judgment, did not fail to display in the most unmistakable manner his lively gratitude at such unlooked-for treatment. He wrote to those who sent him a detailed statement of his experiences, adding that the farmers of Illinois, who were abundantly supplied with grain of every kind, had offered to furnish them still further with food for credit.

This, it seems, was a cap-sheaf that the Mississippians par excellence could not stand. They at once surmised, with financial shrewdness, that the people of Illinois had sent them the grain because they desired to open a heavy trade with them, and partly, too, because they feared the chivalric people of the independent State, and wished to be upon good terms with them again

At this state of the case, it is gratifying to find that there is some honor left even in Mississippi. The Jackson Republican, in a candid article, acknowledges with gratitude the assistance given so generously by the Illinoisans, denounces emphatically those ill-bred knaves who would turn to ashes even these fruits of fraternal sympathy, and calls upon the citizens of the State to forget all former dissensions, and to cherish again sentiments of brotherly love, such as in days gone by made the people of the several States one in all the essentials of peace and harmony.

What better illustration of the Scriptural advice, to heap coals of fire upon one's enemies by deeds of kindness and of love, could the residents of Springfield desire? From the home of Lincoln to the home of Davis have been sent, not cannon balls or threats, but bread and gentle greetings. In a charitable set-to of this sort, there can be little question as to which side wins.

A Radical Difference.—Antagonisms between the United States and the little black Confederacy multiply apace. Their political and economical divergencies are but small affairs; the variation in the complexion of their Governments is not more than skin deep; even the difference of race which Elwood Fisher has discovered between Americans and Seceders is hardly a vital distinction. But the ultimate analysis of the two peoples has been achieved by the subtle Alabamian who is now figuring in Washington as one of the Extraordinary Envoys from the new Heptarchy to the American States. Deeper, it seems, than institutions or opinions,—deeper than race,—deep as the primal elements of the spiritual organism itself, is the antagonism between the two peoples. It may be tersely stated thus: The one nation consists of gentlemen; the other of—no matter what—something else; or, to put it in Envoy Forsyth's own style: he is discoursing in his Register of Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Jeff. Davis as being respectively "representative" Northern and Southern men, and says:

> "One a self-made man, by turn rail-splitter, raftsman, flat-boatman, grocer, village attorney, prosperous lawyer, member of Congress, and, by a strange accident, President of a great nation; the other, (Davis,) a gentleman born and bred, carefully educated, distinguished in the field, at the bar, and in the Cabinet. * * * Are not the distinguishing characteristics which prove us two people well represented in these two men?"

Not to mention modesty at all, which has for some time been supposed to be one of the eminent attributes of a gentleman, this assumption of exclusive gentility is quite as ludicrous as it is vulgar; and would be too diverting even for contempt, were it not that it is actually one of the queer fantasies in which the swollen snobs of the Heptarchy continually and complacently indulge. Unfortunately, however, laudations of one's self do not go for much in the courts of this world; and, moreover, the world is too familiar with the facts in this case, to furnish any other response thereto than an irrepressible horse-laugh. The remorseless census, to begin with, tells us that more than two of the four millions over whom Jeff. Davis rules are negroes, who are denied even the first rights of men, to say nothing of the immunities of gentlemen. Of the remaining white fraction, the traveled world is all too familiar with the sneaking phiz and shuffling shanks of the Carolina clay-eater, the death's-head and bow-legs of the Georgia corn-cracker, the brutish look of the Florida minorcan, and the piratical visage of the Gulf Ruffians, who are now the ruling class there, ever to write them down as genteel above all who dwell in America. Neither will the towering gentility of the few thousands who constitute the rampant plantocracy, be conceded by mankind generally; while the shopkeeper man down there has much the characteristics of that style the world over. And still less will it be conceded that the negro-overseers, negro-traders, negro-auctioneers, or the other white odds and ends of a negro community, are entitled to rank foremost of the gentlemen of the World. De gustibus, &c.

But the great, free, intelligent, courageous Democracy of white men in these United States, overflowing with a generous vitality whose resistless sweep has been felt all over the world, and is now felt even down among the vulgar gentility of Cottondom, is strong enough to leave its historic character to justify itself, and manly enough to offset the arrogant gibberings of a low aristocracy by a high nobility of virtue and freedom.

But Will They Come?

It is needless to inform the world that Cottondom at present breathes nothing but war, and sees everything—as some sufferers by delirium tremens are said to do—steeped in blood. From the entire secess-pool rise deathly vapors, and young gentlemen at parties, when called on by the ladies for sentiments, (they do such things down there,) respond with such little amiabilities as "Blood is cheap," "Northern Invaders in Southern graves," and the like.

All very fine. A warlike race and a rifle-shooting race, a free race living by the labor of Helots, and very fightable, doubtless. But the facts? Has it escaped the eye of any one who has read, though never so superficially the Southern papers, that, apart from the Governor Wise programme, since disowned, the talk of the men of war is always of being invaded? They are going to repel the despot and tyrant and brigand, and all that, with the utmost vigor of a corn-fed constitution. But how if the despots and tyrants don't come? Just suppose them to remain at home, which they seem on the whole to have concluded to do with great severity. There you are—calm as ever. And really, as matters are now progressing, it seems as if all the North has to do is to remain at home, giving an occasional growl or start, in which case Cottondom will at the present rate tax, fortify, levy, march, and otherwise gasp and shake itself to death with the utmost speed, neatness and dispatch.

But how if they do come after all? Just imagine it. A real Northern invasion of Vandal Hoosiers, Gothic Crackers, Allemanic Suckers and Hun Yankees in all their wild and bristling barbarism! Will it be so very easy and pleasant to crush them out! And then the Helots. And last, not least, Mexico. How about Mexico? If the Heathen were really down among you, oh cotton chivalry, would they neglect stirring up the Greasers? Hardly. And if you can remember, the conquest of Mexico was not such a trifle after all. It took us all to do it, and, between friends, we fought pretty hard at that. Sum them all up—Northern barbarians, slaves and Mexicans—to say nothing of the Camanches, and then count your chances.

Friends—the North will probably stay at home for a long time. You may welcome us with bloody hands and all that sort of thing, but we won't go to be welcomed. Fight yourselves if you like—and Sam. Houston seems to be getting ready for it—but don't expect invasion. For your own sakes, if for none others, we shall deny you for the present the Milesian luxury of treading on your coat-tails.

Lager-bier-dom in a Ferment.—The plotters against the laws which guard our civil Sabbath from invasion, were demented when they called for the no-Sunday demonstration in the Stadt Theatre on Sunday week. They are now thrown into a terrible ferment by the overwhelming counter-demonstration of their own countrymen at Cooper Institute. So frequent and confident had been their asseverations that the Germans were unanimously opposed to the Sunday Laws, that the enthusiastic protest of at least 3,000 of their number against their disorganizing creed, puts them hors du combat at the very opening of the campaign. For, if the Germans are divided in sentiment, the Americans are not; and legislators are not likely to disturb time-honored statutes at the beck of a beer-garden faction, that cannot command the support of even a majority of our German citizens.

Nevertheless, with the impracticable pertinacity of Red Republicanism, the no-Sunday war is to be continued. The German papers contain inflammatory advertisements about "Freedom," and "Agitation! Agitation!" is the watchword. Another attempt is to be made to rally the forces of "Liberty"—to sell rum and profit by plays on Sunday. With their usual facility in undoing their cause by overdoing it, the more they meet and expose the character and aims of the agitators, the more earnestly will they enlist the opposition of their own right-minded countrymen, and the more firmly will American citizens cling to the institutions thus assailed. The result will doubtless be that when the froth shall have subsided, our over-zealous Teutonic friends will come to content themselves with six days in a week of money-making and fun, and will fall into line with their own more orderly countrymen and with the bulk of the citizens who have formed our institutions, in welcoming and enjoying one day in a week in quiet and decency. Till then, they had better let the Sunday laws alone.

Chivalry Chafing.—Our readers will remember a letter of Judge Lyons, of South Carolina, reproduced a few days since in the Times. It was precisely such a representation of the desperate state of affairs in the Palmetto State as its fire-eating cavaliers would least like to see in current circulation; for it told of ruinous forced loans, of crops unplanted, of negroes that could neither be worked, or fed, or sold; and of the resolution of large masses of the people to escape by emigration from these and other ill consequences of the actual mad misrule. We are not surprised, therefore, at finding in the Charleston Mercury an attempt to evade the results of such a damning disclosure, not by denying any of the alleged facts or the existence of the alleged author, or the authenticity of the language ascribed to him, but by representing the letter as an invention of the New-York Times. It is unfortunate that the Mercury should have selected this particular [illegible] of controversy. Had it gone to the merits of the case, we might have found difficulty in marshaling evidence, of strictly judicial rigor, to sustain our convictions. But the authorship of the letter is very readily determined, and for the satisfaction of the Mercury, we beg to say that it was copied into our columns from the Alamo Gazette, published at Waco, Texas, where it was inserted with palpable proofs of genuineness. If, therefore, factitious, the credit of invention belongs to the Heptarchy.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Supply Bill—Increase of the Lobby—The Grinding Committees—Tax Levy—Atlantic-avenue—Milk Freight on Railroads—Protection of Piers and Wharves—Battery Improvement—Legislative Bribery Case.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Albany, Friday, March 15, 1861.

The Assembly passed another evening in the consideration of the Annual Supply bill, to which were added several original appropriations, and one or two restored that had at a previous session been stricken out. Among the latter were the appropriations to the members whose seats had been contested, for their expenses, the sum of $140 each, and the same amount to Mr. Hopps, the contestant of Mr. Kenney. The same amount was moved for the contestants of Messrs. Myers and Arcularius, but in the judgment of the House, they had not made out as good cases as did Mr. Hopps, and the usual practice of paying each side in case of a contested seat, has thus been reversed. The Committee having disposed of the amendments, reported the bill to the House, which adjourned before the question was taken on ordering the bill to a third reading.

The question came up this morning and occupied the session until 3½ P. M., during which time every motion made and lost in the Committee of the Whole was entitled, as a matter of parliamentary right, to a new hearing, and on behalf of most it was exercised. Some changes were made, but none of any important amount, and at the above hour the bill was ordered to a third reading.

There has been an immense increase in the force of the lobby within a few days, drawn here by the important measures lately reported affecting the City of New-York. The cloak-room, ante-room, Post-office of the Assembly, and outer half of the capitol are thronged by numerous groups, anxiously discussing the prospects of pet measures or particularly obnoxious ones; but in most cases the conversation being carried on in extremely low tones. Occasionally a group of five are seen in a retired corner, the fifth and inner figure of the group being one of those unfortunate and sadly perplexed beings called "members." In another part of the room, at the same time, can probably be seen two parties, each with a long slip of paper called a "division list," a roll of the members of either House, and each name with certain cabalistic marks annexed, to be deciphered only by the initiated. These signs are unmistakeable evidences that the ides of March are upon us, and that we are about to enter on the last three weeks of the session. Of course, no bill can be introduced after Monday next with any certain prospect, even under favorable auspices, of getting through both Houses. Another indication of the approach of the end of the session is afforded by the frequent suspensions of business, made necessary by the noise and disorder prevalent in the Assembly Chamber, occasioned by the growing necessity of frequent conferences among members.

Mr. Pierce's plan of expediting legislation was called up by him last evening, but a substitute being offered by Mr. H. Smith, who proposes the time-sanctioned, venerable Committee of nine, both plans are laid on the table to be printed, one of which will most probably be adopted. Some of the members are decidedly opposed to everything of the kind, but if they have any measures of their own yet behind, it may not be difficult to produce a change in their views, as has often been done in past years.

Mr. Hardy, from Committee on Cities and Villages, reported the New-York Tax Levy, and also a bill authorizing the Supervisors of New-York to borrow money in anticipation of the tax to be levied. On motion of Mr. Benedict, of Albany, both bills were referred to the New-York delegation, with power to report complete. As these bills were only received in this city this morning, such rapid progress in legislation cannot easily be excelled, and may be used to show the non-existence of any necessity for a Grinding Committee.

Mr. Hutchings, from the Judiciary Committee, reported favorably the bill providing for the payment of certain articles furnished and work done for the City of New-York, and to legalize the action of the Common Council relative thereto, which is supposed to have reference to the claim of McSpedon & Baker, for printing City Charter, &c. Also, the bill legalizing the contract relative to filling sunken lots in the City of New-York.

Mr. Fisher, from the Judiciary Committee, reported favorably, the bill relative to the widening of Atlantic-avenue, Brooklyn, which is an amendment to the original act designed to lessen the expense and assess the same on property on the avenue.

Mr. Dutcher, from the Railroad Committee, reported favorably the bill authorizing a horse railroad from East New-York to the Union Race Course.

Mr. Farnum, from a Special Committee, reported favorably the Harlem Railroad Milk bill, fixing the freight at three-fourths of a cent per quart. The odd one-fourth of a cent is making considerable stir among the lobby.

The Senate's Committee on Commerce and Navigation yesterday had quite an animated discussion, by numerous counsel, on the bill giving the exclusive use of certain piers and slips to the steamboat lines occupying them, the result of which was manifested by a report from that Committee this morning, adverse to the bill, which was concurred in by the Senate, and the bill thus disposed of.

The same Committee reported favorably the bill authorizing the construction of a basin in the Battery for the use of the Staten Island ferries, the United States barges, and the boats of the Harbor Police. Also, the bill for the establishment of a Nautical School in the harbor of New-York, which I noticed yesterday, but omitted to mention that it was reported by Senator Manierre.

Senator Ferry called up his resolutions for the appointment of a Grinding Committee, which were opposed by Senator Hammond, as unnecessary in the stage of business now before the Senate, and as wrong in principle. It had long been a custom, but it was an evil custom, and should be abolished. Malus usus abolenda est, and there was no time better than the present to do it. The resolutions were adopted by the vote of 15 to 13.

The Jay Gibbons case will probably be brought to a close by a report to-morrow. The Committee were hearing counsel this afternoon, which will wind up the meetings of the Committee so far as the public are concerned. What will be the verdict cannot with certainty be foretold. Although the papers here have frequently spoken of it as a foregone conclusion from the commencement, some saying there was no possible doubt of guilt, and others as equally confident of a base conspiracy to crush an innocent member, I believe the Committee will report neither—but a censurable offence, a negotiation in which two parties were equally concerned and equally guilty.

The Committee of the Whole took up the bill to amend the Central Park act, and ordered it to a third reading.

The bill to provide for a complete enrolment and discipline of the militia, and to amend former acts in relation thereto, was also taken up. Arrival of the Overland Express—$689,000 on the way to New-York—Politics in California—The Senatorial Question, &c.

FORT KEARNEY, Friday, March 15.

The California Pony Express passed this place at 4 P. M., bringing the following summary of news:

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, March 2—3:40 P. M.

The principal consignees per Cortez are:

Wells, Fargo & Co..	$131,000	Sather & Church....	$64 000
Alsop & Co...........	125,000	Strauss..................	55,000
Davidson...............	80,000	Coleman..................	35,000
Barrot..................	75,000

Tee following are first cabin passengers per Cortez.

Mrs. Valentine and infant, J. H. Richmond, T. T. Dougherty, late United States Consul; Michael Price, of Honolulu; Alex. Price, Ben. Tappan, Henry Adler, J. K. Holman, J. E. Nobles and servant, H. Kastere, Rev. Robert Keller, Edward Gailhard, L. Lostrowski, C. F. Stumeke, wife and child; Wm. G. Bush, A. S. Hall, wife and child; A. Powell, Jr., John L. Dunn, C. O. W. Pond, Mrs. Langson Leonard and infant.

The ship Dashing Wave has cleared for New-York, with a miscellaneous cargo, comprising 1,200 sacks of barley, 1,200 sacks of copper ore, 2,000 hides, 300 flasks quicksilver, 140 barrels of tallow, 87 bales wool, 1,500 bags guano, &c.

The steamship Uncle Sam, with the New-York mails of Feb. 1, is now overdue some six days, causing much anxiety.

The Pouy Express, with dates from the Atlantic States to the 15th ult., is telegraphed from Carson Valley to-day.

The Harrasset case, for alleged defalcation in the San Francisco Mint, in 1856, is on trial in the United States Circuit Court.

A. AUSTIN & Co., retail dry-goods merchants, recently reported as failed, have resumed business.

HORACE SMITH, who killed the printer, named HEWELL, in San Francisco, on the 1st of January, being refused a change of venue by the Court, has petitioned the Legislature, alleging that he cannot have a fair trial in San Francisco, and asking the passage of a special act removing his trial to Placer County, his place of residence, thus virtually asking the privilege to select his own Judge and jury. Both Houses of the Legislature have granted the prayer of the petitioner by more than a two-thirds majority. There is some prospect that the Governor will veto the act, and throw the responsibility on the Legislature of again passing it by a two-thirds vote.

The Chairman of the Breckinridge State Central Committee has called a meeting of that body at Sacramento on the 20th, to consider the perilous crisis in our national affairs. He urges the following resolutions for the meeting:

"Let us have union if we can, peaceable dissolution if we must, but conflict, never.

"If a peaceable dissolution comes, why should California remain with the Free States; if a bloody separation, why should she not establish a Pacific nationality? Is she willing to be dragged into a war against a Southern Confederation of her sisters? Should such a Confederacy be irrevocably established, ought she not to demand of the other Free States to consent to a peaceable separation, if any must come, as an unyielding condition of her remaining with them. Does not LINCOLN'S foreshadowed policy of executing the laws in the Federal States imply force, coercion and war? Are our people really to plunge into anarchy, and suffer the ravages of such a war? These are the momentous questions to be considered, on which it is feared will too soon require action, therefore a full meeting of the Committee is requested.

(Signed,) CHAS. LINDLEY, Chairman."

There are no new features in the Senatorial election question before the Legislature.

The Senate yesterday amended the Union resolution previously passed in the Assembly, and adopted it in the following form, by a vote of 20 to 6, the negative vote being Republicans:

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the plan of settlement for the existing difficulties in the Atlantic States, as proposed by Hon. J. J. CRITTENDEN, in the Senate of the United States, Jan. 8, 1861, and that we condemn the use of a military force to coerce the people—recommending conciliation and compromise rather than war, and compromise rather than disunion from the different part of the States.

The mining news is about as usual at this season of the year.

The recently discovered silver mines in Nevada County, near Grat's Valley, are prospecting well, and experienced miners from the Washoe District have great confidence in them.

In commercial affairs, during the past three days, business has not varied from the quiet character and limited extent heretofore noted. There was not enough demand for money on the steamer day to create the least excitement.

The entire carge of Malaga fruit, per the B. L. Rawlings, was sold at auction yesterday, and the rates brought were generally satisfactory to the importers. Raisins though brought materially reduced prices.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mrs HOEY, the leading actress of this favorite establishment—and, for that matter, of the City—takes her annual benefit to-night. The occasion is one that never fails to draw forth the legions who honor the drama and its most able representatives. Mrs. HOEY is not only the best actress we have, but the most elegant and charming lady now on the stage. The fact as we state it is, we are sure, never forgotten, but on an occasion like the present it should be remembered with more than ordinary pleasure. We need only add that BOURCICAULT'S comedy of "London Assurance" is to be played, and that Mr. WALLACK'S entire company will assist the beneficiare, who plays the part of Lady Gay Spanker.

MUCH OBLIGED.—Mr. JOHN HOEY, of Adams' Express, favored us yesterday with New-Orleans papers but three days and a half old,—the quickest time which can be made from the Crescent City. We have nothing by mail later than March 9.

—JOHN LESDURE, who died at Trenton, N. J., on the 10th instant, in the 68th year of his age, was Sergeant Major of the Fourteenth Regiment U. S. Infantry, at the bombardment of Fort McHenry, and gave notice of the approach of the enemy's barges, by ordering the sentries to discharge their muskets. He served on board the frigate United States, Commodore DECATUR, in the action with and capture of the British frigate Macedonian, and was wounded in the right leg by a splinter, from the effects of which he never entirely recovered, and which probably hastened his death.

Spinal Diseases.—DR. HALSTED'S SUCCESS IN the treatment of these diseases, in which he has had unusually large experience, and of the many dangerous affections growing out of them, are evidences of the superior efficacy of his method—as is also his success in the treatment of Paralysis, Diseases of the Joints, and loss of the use of limbs. Many under his care have been made to walk, whom it was supposed would be helpless for life. In these cases, pain may be felt in any organ where the nerve terminates, without producing any uneasiness in the back, where the nerve has its origin. Pain in the breast, side, hips, knees, or even feet, may have its origin in the spine.

When a nerve of the spine in the neck is compressed, the disease will be found in the head; when between the shoulders, about the lungs or heart; further down, in the stomach and bowels; when opposite the hips, or in the small of the back, in the kidneys, womb, or lower limbs. In certain weaknesses of the bowels, and other difficulties dependent on spinal derangement, medicine is taken with but partial benefit, unless local treatment of the spine itself be resorted to. Such sufferers will find information of value in the treatise on Motorpathy (price 55 cents), and any invalid may read it with benefit. Circulars sent gratis. Address H. HALSTED, M. D., Round Hill Water Cure, Northampton, Mass.

PURIFY THE BLOOD.
MOFFAT'S
LIFE PILLS
AND PHŒNIX BITTERS.

The best family medicine now before the public, for the cure of scrofula, ulcers, scurvy, or eruptions of the skin, fever and ague, dyspepsia, dropsy, piles, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

By their use the blood is restored to a healthy state and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The LIFE PILLS have been used with great success in bilious and liver complaints, sick headache, nervous headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, and the sickness incident to females in delicate health.

The LIFE MEDICINES have been known to cure Rheumatism permanently in three weeks, and Gout in half that time, by removing local inflammation from the muscles and ligaments of the joints.

The use of these Pills for a very short time will effect an entire cure of Salt Rheum, and a striking improvement in the clearness of the skin. Common Colds and Influenza will always be cured by one dose, or by two in the worst cases.

Prepared by Dr. WM. B. MOFFAT, and for sale at his office, No. 335 Broadway, and by all Druggists.

The following is an extract from a letter written by Rev. C. Z. Weiser, to the "German Reformed Messenger," at Chambersburgh, Penn.

A BENEFACTRESS.

"There is a woman in the public eye, whose name had all along been associated, in our mind, with the 'Yankee,' 'Quack,' and 'Humbug.' But it is so no longer, and we desire to wrest her name from all such suspicious association in all other minds. Whatever notions we may have of womanly delicacy and propriety, we will all admit that woman alone is the Nurse—the GOOD Nurse—the BEST Nurse. Whether we shall have female physicians or not is a question which must be decided by time and principle, and not as a matter of taste. Pride, prejudice, caprice and custom may as well behave themselves, for if there is really a want there will also be a supply—if there be a 'calling,' there will be a 'coming.' Nature and Human Society are always self-supplying, and though Art and Fashion may hinder, they cannot prevent.

Mrs. Winslow does not want to treat you, gentlemen! nor does she prescribe a regimen for your wives; but modestly appears as a messenger of health and happiness to your INFANTS in the cradle. Is there anything improper in that? A nurse of 'ten years' experience can boldly say what is or is not good for a babe—and ought to be listened to. God speed her on her humble but happy mission. She is the most successful physician and most effectual benefactress our little ones ever enjoyed—her doting parents not excepted. Just open the door for her, and Mrs. Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the nursery. Of this we are so sure, that we will teach our 'Susy' to say, 'A BLESSING ON MRS. WINSLOW,' for helping her to survive and escape the griping, collicking and teething siege. We confirm every word set forth in the Prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform—every part of it, nothing less. Away with your 'Cordial,' 'Paregoric,' 'Drops,' 'Laudanum,' and every other narcotic, by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life!

We have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her 'SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING.' If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the Infant race."

HIGHLY IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP is the only thing that you can rely upon to give rest to yourself, and relief and health to your infant.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been the means of restoring the drooping spirits in many mothers.

This is the season of the year to use MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.

To every mother who has children suffering from any of the complaints incident to the period of teething, we say do not let your own prejudices, or the prejudices of others, stand in the way of the relief that will be sure—yes, absolutely sure—to follow the use of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.

Druggists everywhere now keep MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething. No medicine in the United States sells like it. It is a standard medicine, and its fame world-wide. Physicians order and use it wherever its magical effects have been witnessed.

During the thirty years of unprecedented and increasing popularity of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP, innumerable "CORDIALS" and other nostrums prepared by pretended M. D.'s, have sprung up and lived but a mushroom existence, while the SOOTHING SYRUP has been constantly increasing in popularity and become a household word, and thousands of mothers thank Mrs. Winslow for the health of their children by the use of her invaluable article.

When the present race of "Cordials" have followed in the footsteps of their "illustrious predecessors," MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP will continue to be a popular favorite and a blessing to every mother.

None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New-York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by Druggists throughout the world.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD.

HOMES FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS
IN THE GARDEN STATE OF THE WEST.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY
HAVE FOR SALE
1,200,000 ACRES
OF
RICH FARMING LANDS,
IN
TRACTS OF FORTY ACRES AND UPWARDS,
ON LONG CREDITS AND AT LOW PRICES.

MECHANICS, FARMERS AND WORKING MEN.

The attention of the enterprising and industrious portion of the community is directed to the following statements and liberal inducements offered them by the

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY,

Which, as they will perceive, will enable them, by proper energy, perseverance and industry, to provide comfortable and permanent homes for themselves and families, with, comparatively speaking, very little capital:

LANDS OF ILLINOIS.

No State in the Valley of the Mississippi offers so great an inducement to the settler as the State of Illinois. There is no portion of the world where all the conditions of climate and soil so admirably combine to produce those two great staples, corn and wheat, as the prairies of Illinois.

RICH ROLLING PRAIRIE LANDS.

The deep rich loam of the prairies is cultivated with such wonderful facility that the farmers of the Eastern and Middle States are moving to Illinois in great numbers. The area of Illinois is about equal to that of England, and the soil is so rich that it will support twenty millions of people.

EASTERN AND SOUTHERN MARKETS.

These lands are contiguous to a railroad 700 miles in length, which connects with other roads, and navigable lakes and rivers, thus affording an unbroken communication with the Eastern and Southern markets.

APPLICATION OF CAPITAL.

Thus far capital and labor have been applied to developing the soil; the great resources of the State in COAL and iron are almost untouched; the invariable rule that the mechanic arts flourish best where food and fuel are cheapest, will follow at an early day in Illinois, and in the course of the next ten years, the natural laws and necessities of the case warrant the belief that at least FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE will be engaged in the State of Illinois in the various manufacturing employments.

RAILROAD SYSTEM OF ILLINOIS.

Over $100,000,000 of private capital have been expended on the railroad system of Illinois. Inasmuch as part of the income from several of these works, with a valuable public fund in lands, go to diminish the State expenses, the taxes are light, and must, consequently, every day decrease.

THE STATE DEBT.

The State Debt is only $10,106,398 14, and, within the last three years, has been reduced $3,959,746 80 and we may reasonably expect that in ten years it will become extinct.

PRESENT POPULATION.

The State is rapidly filling up with population; 868,025 persons having been added since 1850, making the present population 1,719,496—a ratio of 102 per cent. in ten years.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

The agricultural products of Illinois are greater than those of any other State. The products sent out during the past year exceeded 1,500,000 tons. The wheat crop of 1860 approaches 35,000,000 bushels, while the corn crop yields not less than 140,000,000 bushels.

FERTILITY OF SOIL.

Nowhere can the industrious farmer secure such immediate results for his labor as upon these prairie soils, they being composed of a deep, rich loam, the fertility of which is unsurpassed by any on the globe.

TO ACTUAL CULTIVATORS.

Since 1854 the Company have sold 1,300,000 acres. They sell only to actual cultivators, and every contract contains an agreement to cultivate. The road has been constructed through these lands at an expense of $30,000,000. In 1850 the population of forty-nine counties through which it passes was only 335,598, since which, 479,293 have been added, making the whole population 814,891—a gain of 143 per cent.

EVIDENCES OF PROSPERITY.

As an evidence of the thrift of the people, it may be stated that 600,000 tons of freight, including 8,600,000 bushels of grain, and 250,000 barrels of flour, were forwarded over the line last year.

EDUCATION.

Mechanics and Working Men will find the Free School system encouraged by the State, and endowed with a large revenue for the support of schools. Their children can live in sight of the Church and School-house, and grow up with the prosperity of the leading State in the great Western Empire.

PRICES AND TERMS OF PAYMENT.

The price of these lands vary from $6 to $25 per acre, according to location, quality, &c. First-class farming lands sell for about $10 or $12 per acre; and the relative expense of subduing prairie land as compared with wood land is in the ratio of 1 to 10 in favor of the former. The terms of sale for the bulk of these lands will be at six per cent. per annum, and six interest notes at six per cent., payable respectively in one, two, three, four, five and six years from date of sale; and four notes for principal, payable in four, five, six and seven years from date of sale; the contract stipulating that one-tenth of the tract purchased shall be fenced and cultivated each, and every year, for five years from the date of sale, so that at the end of five years one-half shall be fenced and under cultivation.

TWENTY PER CENT. WILL BE DEDUCTED, from the valuation for cash, except the same should be at six dollars per acre, when the cash price will be five dollars.

Pamphlets, descriptive of the lands, soil, climate, productions, prices and terms of payment, can be had on application to

J. W. FOSTER, LAND COMMISSIONER,

Chicago, Illinois.

THE SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

Presentation of Colors to the Command, and a Sword to its Commander.

Speeches by Thomas Francis Meagher, A. V. Stout, Quartermaster Tully, J. W. Chandler, Lieut.-Col. Nugent and others.

The City Assembly Rooms were thronged, last evening, by an assemblage consisting for the most part, as an Hibernian would say, of Irishmen of both sexes, who came together to witness the presentation of a stand of colors to the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. Y. S. M., and of a sword of honor to Col. MICHAEL CORCORAN, its Commander, "as a testimonial," in the words of the card of invitation, signed by JOHN CLANCY, Chairman, "of sympathy with said regiment and officers in their refusal to perform an extra parade, not prescribed by law, in honor of the Prince of Wales." The officers and men of the regiment were present, in full uniform. At a little after 8 o'clock they marched in, led by the regimental band, playing the Irish air, "Larry O'Gaff," amid loud plaudits, and presented arms to Messrs. A. V. Stout, T. F. Meagher, Chandler, O'Connor, E. and T. Hearne, Wm. E. Robinson, Maguire, J. Hennessy, Dunphy, Jas. Lynch, J. P. Tully, Alderman Farley, Ex-Alderman Bradley, and others, as they came on to the platform.

Ex-Alderman BRADLEY, on behalf of the Committee of Arrangements, said he had the honor to present as presiding officer Hon. ANDREW V. STOUT.

REMARKS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. STOUT expressed his gratification with the honor. He said he had failed to discern in his reading of history that citizens of the United States had any reason to adulate the representatives of the English nation. It was still the right, undoubtedly, of all who chose to pay respect to the Prince of Wales, not as a Prince but as a distinguished stranger coming under the title of Lord RENFREW. But there was no reason for ordering a parade of the First Division in his honor. Happily the law prescribed that no more than a certain number of parades should be made in a year. It was claimed on behalf of Col. CORCORAN [nine cheers] and the Regiment that they had performed the prescribed number of parades in the year, before they were called on to parade in honor of the Prince of Wales, and the General who ordered the parade transcended his powers. ["Three groans for SANDFORD!" and hisses long continued.] But he would not encroach upon the part which RICHARD O'GORMAN [cheers] was performing in shielding Col. CORCORAN from blame in this matter. Blame, did he say, in refusing to pay honor to the representatives of the British Throne? [Hisses.] Mr. STOUT complimented the military spirit of the Irish, but claimed that Col. CORCORAN did right in refusing to transmit to his regiment a degrading order—[cheers]—and the regiment did right in sustaining their Colonel. [Cheers.] Mr. STOUT concluded by reading a letter from Col. CORCORAN, expressing his regret that he was too ill to be present, declaring it improper for him at this time to say anything about his own trial further than that, though an American citizen, he was also an Irishman born, and should never forget that the Prince of Wales was the representative of Ireland's oppressor, and requesting that Quartermaster TULLY would speak for him.

Hon. J. W. CHANDLER, now addressing the Quartermaster, made a speech, requesting Col. CORCORAN, through him, to accept the sword which lay on the table as a testimonial for his manly conduct in refusing to order a parade of his Regiment in honor of the Prince of Wales. [Groans.] He declared that the Colonel acted strictly in accordance with law and his duty in so refusing, and that he had thus set an example which would call forth a response from every true American citizen, and awaken all to an abhorrence of every species of King-craft. He read a lengthy dissertation on the quality of the liberty enjoyed in this country. In conclusion, he presented the sword, alluding to its power for good or evil, in the hands of worthy or unworthy men, and expressing the belief that, given to Col. CORCORAN, it was given to a brave man.

Quartermaster TULLY, in receiving the sword, said it was a pleasing duty to him, on this occasion, to obey the command of his superior officer, for there was no man in this City in whose shoes he would rather stand. [Applause.] He would not undertake a lengthy reply, but he desired to express Col. CORCORAN'S sense of the generosity of his friends. The sword was an American sword, and it would be the weapon of an American soldier. [Applause.] Should the cause of this Union call for soldiers, this would be one of the first swords unsheathed in support of the Republic. [Applause.] Mr. TULLY spoke of the reception of the Prince of Wales in this country, characterizing it as humiliating and unworthy of the independence of Americans. He dwelt upon the wrongs of Ireland, and said it was his belief that the memory of these had something to do with Col. CORCORAN'S action. [Loud applause.] In all parts of the land had come voices of approval of Col. CORCORAN'S conduct, even from California (holding up a medal received by Col. CORCORAN from Irish Californians.) We all had a particular object of regard. The slave longed for liberty, and the Irishman yearned for his native land. [Applause.] It was his firm faith that the day of Ireland's prosperity and liberty was almost come. In conclusion he returned thanks for the testimonial. [Three cheers.]

The sword was of elegant make, with a double scabbard, the outer one being of gold and ornamented with Irish emblems and the American colors. The inscription on one side was as follows: "Presented to Col. CORCORAN, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment." On the reverse were the words, "In memory of the 11th of October, 1860."

The colors to be presented to the Regiment were now brought forward amid great applause.

The material of the stand of colors is heavy green silk, magnificently worked in emerald and gold. In the centre is a representation of the ancient flag of Erin—the sun-burst. Upon a scroll above and beneath the central emblem are inscribed in golden letters the same words inscribed upon the sword presented to Col. CORCORAN.

THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER was next introduced, the audience shouting plaudits, and made the presentation speech:

MR. T. F. MEAGHER'S SPEECH.

OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT: In discharging the duty with which I have been intrusted on this occasion, my words shall be few and plain. The language of soldiers is direct and brief. Orders the most important are delivered in curt phrases, and the announcement of victories, by the greatest generals, has been most surely and memorably made in the shortest syllables it was possible to command. Speaking as soldiers are in the habit of speaking—confining myself strictly to the interpretation of the sentiments from which the honors and ceremonies of this night proceed—I shall best conform, I believe, to the spirit of the occasion, and the official character of those I have been chosen to address. This much I say, to repress at the outset, the inordinate expectations of rhetoric in which a portion of the audience might be led to indulge, and the vain effort to gratify which, would detract from the obvious significance of the arms that surround me, and the flag they are, henceforth, to conduct with peculiar honor, with peculiar pride and courage, wherever their line of march, their onset, their retreat or advance may be. [Loud cheers.] The circumstances out of which the proceedings of this evening have sprung are rapidly told. At the close of the Summer it is announced that the heir to the throne of England will visit New-York. The merchants, the judges, the editors, the brokers, the attorneys, the fashionables and "first families" of the City resolve themselves instantly into an overwhelming Committee, vote the promised visitor a Ball, subscribe lavishly for the purpose, devote themselves, day after day, to the elaboration of an entertainment which shall establish for their munificence a character for sumptuous excess, if it does not permanently assure the statesmen and aristocracy of England, that the people of America are one with them in blood, policy, and religion. [Laughter and cheers.] The Chief Magistrate [hisses] seizes his horn, and, importunate as Misenus:

> "Quo non præ tantior alter

summons the Fire Department to follow up the ball with their machines and flambeaux, so that the globe of light within the Academy of Music may have a lambent tail to it in the streets without. [Loud laughter.] In his eagerness for the production of this phenomenon, he pledges his purse to supply the flame for the comet, and the music with which it shall travel. [Roars of laughter.] Next comes the General of the First Division of the State Militia of New-York. With an alacrity, equaled only by that with which he ordered out the Division to greet the gamboged priests and princes of Yeddo, [Laughter,] and to commemorate the sinking of an uncommunicative rope in the ocean, [Laughter,] from the working of which the Arcadian millenium of Shelley was glowingly predicted, [Continued laughter,] this elastic and fervent officer directs his command to parade in honor of the Prince of Wales. Nor does the hospitable impulse stop here. The hotel proprietors throb and perspire—every one of them from the Battery to King's Bridge—each striving with every available and conceivable artifice to entrap the Prince, and impregnate his establishment with the odor of royalty. [Loud laughter.] A contention more desperate, ingenious and breathless has never been known. The Smyrnians, the Cyprians and others contending for the glory of being by descent the fellow-citizens of HOMER, were nothing to these palatial proprietors, contending among themselves as to which of them should have the privilege of spreading the table-cloth and making the bed of the destined monarch of England. [Renewed and uproarious laughter.] The wealthy and grander ladies of the city, young and old, contract the pleasant frenzy of the hour, and thousands upon thousands of dollars resolve themselves into brocades, laces, wreaths, plumes and diamonds. Were it LAFAYETTE who was coming, a costlier welcome could not have been prepared, nor would the merchandise, the old stock, the newest patterns, the wrinkles, the efflorescence of the City have been so vehemently excited. (Hear, hear, hear.) Then came the surging masses of the people, impelled by one instinct or another, and these did, in truth, impart to the ovation a joyousness, an appearance of thorough heartiness and spontaneous hospitality, a grandeur which it would not otherwise have had. [Loud cheers.] Apart from these proceedings—decorous, silent, perfectly unobtrusive and inoffensive—calm, soldierly, and dignified—there stood the men, in the centre of whose ranks I have now the honor to speak, and to whose guardianship I have been charged to commit the flag, the blazonry on which—wrought for the most part in gold and emerald—symbolize the incorruptible vitality, the perpetual warmth and brightness, the memory and the hope—both equally vivid and irrepressible—of their chivalrous, proud old race. [Enthusiastic cheers.] That the citizens of New-York, with the exception of those who hailed from Ireland, were justified in receiving the Prince of Wales with all the impulsiveness and prodigality characteristic of their splendid City, and that it immeasurably heightened their social prestige to do so with the biggest purse and extasy, it would be ingracious and indelicate of me to dispute. [Hear, hear.] More than this, it would be perverse and rude of me not to admit, as I do freely and fully, the propriety and gracefulness of the reception which the frank young Englishman, the eldest son of the Queen of England, met with here and elsewhere in the Republican portions of the American Continent it was his good fortune to visit. [Hear, hear, and cheers.] A people who whipped the troops of his illustrous grandfather, and drove them to their ships, erecting a sensible and noble commonwealth on the battle-fields where the sword and sceptre of England were trampled into the soil they had drenched with blood, could easily afford to play the host on the grandest scale, when the Prince, from whose family so fruitful and potential a domain had been wrested, came to behold with his own eyes the activity, the influence and freedom, which have resulted from the surrender of CORNWALLIS and the evacuation of New-York. [Loud and continued cheering.] The conqueror can always afford to be munificent to the conquered, and the pride which accompanies success, not less powerfully than motives of a kindlier nature, prompts the display of generosity and friendship, where prosperous circumstances protect such a display from the imputation of obsequiousness, hypocrisy or fear. [Hear, hear, and cheers.] But with citizens of Irish birth the case was different. Participating in the festivities and pageants which signalized the advent of the Prince of Wales to the City of New-York, they would have exposed themselves thereafter to the exasperating accusation that, in an hour of merriment and revelry, giddily confounding themselves with those who had no such memories to restrain them, they had lost sight of the land, which there would have been no necessity for them to leave, had it, instead of being wasted and exhausted by the progenitors of this Prince, been righteously, sympathetically and beneficiently governed by those who were its rulers by the natural authority of birth, common interest and prescriptive right. [Hear, hear, and loud applause.] Participating in these festivities and pageants, they would have furnished a forcible argument to those who deny that Ireland has any mischiefs, growing out of her political condition, to complain of—who contend that her people are satisfied with their relations of subserviency to England—and who flippantly assert that the explosions of disaffection which now and then take place in the country, are occasioned only by the vicious ambition of men who must produce disorder to achieve renown. [Hear, hear.] Dispassionately considering the position and state of Ireland—her forced subjection to England, and through that subjection, the prostration of all that strength, impulse, wealth and genius, which would enable her, if disenthralled, to run a bright career, construct a large fortune, and hold a high place in the busy and aspiring world—dispassionately considering the position and state of Ireland, I think there are few of the citizens of New-York who, now that the excitement and headache of the royal carnival have completely passed away, will not admit, that in keeping aloof from that carnival, the officers and men of the Sixty-ninth, and the Irish citizens generally, did what best became them,—[cries of "Hear, hear"]—a contrary course being inconsistent with their registered declarations, and susceptible of a construction equally adverse to the just expectations, the essential claims and decent pretensions of the country. [Enthusiastic cheering.] Did this attitude, so far as the Sixty-ninth were concerned, involve a breach of military discipline and disloyalty to the State, I should not have been here to-night; for, in that case, a grievous error would have been committed, and every citizen, approving of the procedure, would have as grievously compromised himself in the presence of the law and the sound judgment of the community. [Hear and cheers.] Soldiers have many disagreeable duties to perform, and it sometimes happens that odious obligations are imposed. The metal of which they are made is tested by these rigorous requirements; and the more obnoxious the duty, when that duty is clearly within the provisions of the law, the nobler the opportunity which the soldier has to prove himself reliable and heroic. [Hear, hear.] Had the order to parade in honor of the Prince of Wales been plainly and imperatively legal, and had I been the Colonel of the Sixty-ninth, when it was promulgated from the Head-quarters of the Division—distasteful, humiliating, galling to me as the compliance with it would have been—I should, nevertheless, have resolutely obeyed, or resigned my commission on the spot. [Hear, hear.] Obeying it, however, it would have been with the conviction that the Irish character would not suffer from an act determined by an honorable and upright submission to the law of the Republic; and that, acquitting myself as a dutiful soldier and faithful citizen, I strengthened, rather than impaired, the claims of Ireland to the good will, the advocacy and recognition of America. [Loud cheers.] The legality of Col. CORCORAN'S conduct, in not directing the Sixty-ninth to parade on the occasion referred to, is still before the Court, and he is here, in respectful deference to that authority, in the crowd of citizens in the character of a civilian only, instead of being at the head of the exemplary and admirable regiment, to the efficiency of which his military tastes, knowledge, zeal and diligence—and he will permit me to add, the propriety and excellence of his private life—have so influentially conduced. [Loud and prolonged cheering.] But whatever the Court sitting in White-street may determine, I well know that the consciousness of having acted legally, as well as patriotically, on the 11th of October last, sustains the Colonel proudly, and that, too, under a wearying investigation, in his official separation from the officers and men by whom he is so chivalrously trusted and believed; and in this consciousness, the Regiment I have the honor to address—the multitude of citizens pressing here to witness and approve the ceremony of the night—as well as thousands upon thousands of other sensible and sterling men, throughout this Continent, from the Hudson to the Bay of San Francisco, thoroughly participate. [Hear, hear, and great applause.] Holding, then—I now address myself especially and directly to the officers and men of the 69th—that the action of your Colonel, on the 11th of October last, was creditable to him as a soldier and a citizen, while it strongly marked the aversion with which the English rule in Ireland is regarded by the Irish race, and their sworn antagonism to it—thereby reasserting the immemorial title and eternal aspiration of the Irish people to an independent nationality, and the determination of the Irish in America to support any and every effort that may be made to establish that nationality upon a vital and imperishable basis—holding those opinions, several of the citizens of New-York ordered a flag to be made, commemorative of the action they so approved; and requested me, in their name, to present it to the Regiment. [Great applause.] Officers and men of the Sixty-ninth—I do so with pride, with confidence, with a glowing heart. I do so with the assurance that the superb gift passes into the hands of soldiers who will never permit the gold with which it abounds, to be tarnished by cowardice, insubordination, or neglect of duty:—who will never permit the green field, which to-night looks so ample and luxuriant, to lose its freshness and deep wealth of color, if love of country and jealousness of its honor will perpetuate it:—and who will carry it into the battle, wherever the Eumenides wave their torches and the trumpet of Alecto peals, nerved and quickened by the faith, that the sun, bursting from it in a flood and storm of glory, will maintain its light, as did the sun of victory over the mountains of the Amorrhite. [Vehement cheering, in the midst of which Mr. MEAGHER, bowing to the Regiment, withdrew.]

The remarks of Mr. MEAGHER were frequently interrupted by applause and laughter. The band then played "Garryowen," after which Lieut.-Col. NUGENT briefly responded, returning the thanks of the Regiment for the present of the beautiful stand of colors, and for the kind and complimentary language which had been uttered during the evening. He felt assured, from the meeting this evening, that the conduct of the Regiment on the 11th of October was indorsed by the public, and would say that, if the Sixty-ninth should ever be called upon by the authorities of the Republic to serve their country, it would always be found true in protecting the Stars and Stripes, alongside of the beautiful banner that had just been presented to them. [Applause.]

There were loud cries for O'GORMAN, but the Chairman announced that Mr. O'GORMAN was not in the room, and that the audience was dismissed.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

FIRE IN UNION-SQUARE—LODGE ROOMS BURNED OUT.—Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out on the second floor of the brick building No. 8 Union-square, known as Thorp's Hotel. An alarm brought the firemen to the place with their usual alacrity, but their efforts to stay the ravages of the flames were of no avail until the whole interior of the building was destroyed. The first floor and basement of the house was occupied by M. A. DECKER as a bar-room and restaurant, whose loss of stock amounts to about $7,000, upon which he had no insurance. Mr. E. GILDERSLEEVE owned the furniture and bar fixtures, and his loss, estimated at $1,000, is covered by insurance in the Commonwealth Insurance Company. The upper floors of the building were used as lodge-rooms by various Masonic Societies, the loss of each of which varies from $500 to $1,000, and neither of them had their property insured excepting the Holland Lodge, and even this suffered to a greater extent than the amount for which it had policies—its loss being estimated at $6,000, and its insurances amounting only to $4,000. The building, owned by Mr. A. L. Cox, was injured to the extent of about $7,000; insured for $6,000 in the Niagara, and $5,000 in the Germania Insurance Companies. Mr. THORP had leased the premises for a term of years, and considers that he is out of pocket $16,000 by the disaster. The fire is believed to have originated from a grate on the second floor, where a fire had been kept several days for the purpose of drying a newly erected partition wall in one of the lodge-rooms. Following are the names of the lodges who occupied the premises: Crescent, Holland, Continental, Arcana, Concord, Benevolent, Pacific and Washington, and the Metropolitan, Jerusalem and Cœur de Leon Chapters.

THE TWELFTH REGIMENT LECTURES.—An appreciative audience attended at Irving Hall last evening, on the occasion of the lecture of Capt. MANSFIELD LOVELL, before the Twelfth Regiment, on the subject of heavy ordnance and seacoast defences. Capt. LOVELL, as is well known to the public, has had no little experience in drilling the City Guard practically, both in the armory and working heavy guns at Fort Hamilton. His lecture comprised a description of the various heavy guns in use, the manner of using them, and the effect produced. He concluded by showing that the defences of the harbor of New York are totally inadequate for an emergency; that the Government is neither willing or able to effect the proper reform, and that the only hope for reform was in the perfection of volunteer instruction in artillery practice. Col. BUTTERFIELD, who presided, acknowledged the indebtedness of the Regiment to Capt. LOVELL and the previous lecturers. He stated that owing to the difficulty of procuring the proper gentlemen to finish the course, some other arrangements would be made to satisfy ticket holders. A Zouave drill would be a good idea.

INTERESTING LECTURES.—Mr. W. G. DIX, whose lectures have excited great attention at Washington, at the Smithsonian Institute, and in Boston, receiving high commendation from Hon. EDWARD EVERETT and others, will give his course on "South America," before the Mercantile Library Association of this City, commencing at Clinton Hall next Monday evening. The course is given upon the invitation of Ed. Y. Higbee, Charles King, Horace Webster, Francis L. Hawks, W. B. Astor, T. Tileston, George Folsom, Wm. C. Bryant, Wm. A. Booth, Gorham D. Abbott, and thirty others. The programme will be found elsewhere.

A SUNDAY-SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.—The annual meeting for the work of the American Sunday-school Union, in the West, will be held in the New Baptist Church, (Rev. Dr. HAGUE'S,) corner Madison-avenue and Thirty-first street, on Sabbath evening, at 7½ o'clock. Revs. C. S. ROBINSON, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Brooklyn, and H. C. TRUMBULL, of Hartford, will address the meeting.

THE PAWNERS' BANK.—At a meeting of the Committee appointed on the 13th inst. to consider the plan of the Pawners' Bank, it was decided that in consequence of the lateness of the season at which the measure has been proposed, it was inexpedient to bring the matter before the Legislature at the present session.

Coroners' Inquests.

SUICIDE OF A BOOK-KEEPER.

John G. Quackenbos, a native of this country, about 40 years of age, employed as book-keeper by Reeve & Co., merchants at Nos. 229 and 231 Front-street, committed suicide yesterday forenoon, by shooting himself through the head with a pistol at his boarding-house, No. 106 Bowery. The report of the pistol having been heard, entrance was at once forced to his apartment, and he was found lying upon his face quite dead. Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest upon the body, and the evidence showed that deceased had recently separated from his family, who had gone to live at Deansville, Ct. This separation seems to have been brought about from the fact that deceased was rather intemperate in his habits, and letters were found addressed to him both by his wife and father, imploring that for the sake of his children he would reform. Deceased had lately been a great sufferer from rheumatism, and to relieve the pain had used laudanum to a considerable extent. In view of these facts the jury were of opinion that his mind had become unsettled, and they rendered a verdict of suicide resulting from family troubles.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON A CITY RAILROAD.

On Thursday evening, Israel Westcott, an old man whom the police have classified as a vagrant for the past six years, was run over at the corner of the Bowery and Grand-street, by a Second-avenue railroad car. His legs were shockingly mangled, and he died yesterday. Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest upon the body, when it appeared that the driver of the car was blameless, deceased having lain down on the track to sleep off the effects of liquor.

Police Reports.

A JEALOUS HUSBAND STABBED BY HIS RIVAL.

On Thursday night, about 12 o'clock, John Henry, a laboring man, residing at No. 427 First-avenue, on going to his home found another man named John Edwards in his bedroom, apparently with the full consent of his wife, who seemed to be pleased with the stranger's society. Henry became very angry at the discovery, and attempted to put the intruder into the street, but the latter was not disposed to leave quietly, and a fight resulted. In the struggle Edwards stabbed Henry with a knife, inflicting two severe wounds, one of which was in the abdomen and the other in the side. The police of the Eighteenth Ward soon learned of the occurrence, and Edwards was arrested. He is detained pending the result of the injuries he has caused. Henry was removed to Bellevue Hospital.

AN INDICTMENT FOR ARSON.

A few months since a plumber-shop in Eighth-avenue, near Forty-third-street, was set on fire, and DAVID STUART, a lad sixteen years of age, brother of the owner of the place, was arrested, charged with having perpetrated the incendiarism. The evidence against him, however, was not strong enough to warrant his detention, and he was discharged. Meanwhile, the case has been further investigated, and some circumstances bearing against Stuart having been developed, he was indicted by the Grand Jury. Yesterday he was again arrested upon a bench-warrant by Officer Grier, of the Twenty-second Ward.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

Fire in a Hoop-Skirt Factory.

A YOUNG WOMAN JUMPS FROM A FIFTH-STORY WINDOW AND IS INSTANTLY KILLED—ANOTHER WOMAN NEARLY SUFFOCATED BY SMOKE—ARREST ON SUSPICION OF ARSON.

At a little past 4 o'clock, yesterday morning, fire was discovered in the fifth-story of the Franklin Buildings, No. 106 Orange-street, occupied by the American Hoop-Skirt Company. The alarm was immediately given, and the firemen and citizens promptly repaired to the spot, and succeeded in extinguishing the fire before much damage was done to the premises, but unfortunately not in season to prevent the loss of one life and prevent another from being put in great jeopardy.

The Hoop-Skirt Company occupy rooms on the fourth and fifth floors. Their factory proper is on the fourth floor, where they have employed recently two sets of hands—one for night and the other for day duty. Their reels and sewing-machines are all run by a hot-air engine. One of the two rooms leased by them, on the fifth floor, was occupied by them as a painting department, and the other as a storage room, in which was placed a quantity of worn-out machines, rattan, and other rubbish. Ascending the main stairway of the building, the first room reached, after passing through a door at the left of the landing, on the fifth story, is the storage-room. Opening from this room are two doors, one leading to the paint room, and the other, nearest the stairway, into a large room which was occupied as a sleeping apartment by Miss SUSAN WILSON, daughter of the janitor of the building, and Miss ANNA TREANOR, a seamstress who boarded with the janitor.

As near as can be ascertained, GEORGE ABBRECHT, engineer, employed in the hoop skirt factory, and at work on the fourth story, first discovered that the place was on fire by seeing smoke coming into the engine-room. He seized a bucket of water, and upon going to the next story, found the storage-room on fire, and finding that the building was in danger of being destroyed, he attempted to arouse the women who were sleeping in the adjoining room, and then went out, gave the alarm in the street, went to the house of Engine Company No. 3 near by, on Orange-street, and from thence proceeded to the residence of Mr. OATES, the managing partner of the hoop-skirt company, aroused that gentleman, and returned to the fire.

Engine Company No. 3 turned out promptly, and soon had the fire extinguished. Before this, however, when learning that two women were in the room adjoining where the fire originated, they ascended to the roof and made a hole through into the room, which was densely filled with smoke, and turned on water from this point. Mr. ROBERT BARR, of the same Company, at the imminent risk of his own life, made his way through the fire and smoke, broke out a panel in the door to the sleeping apartment, and made several unsuccessful attempts to find the inmates, so suffocating was the smoke, though he could distinctly hear groans. He finally reached the bed, but both of the occupants had left. Groping his way towards one of the windows, he found Miss TREANOR lying across the window sill, quite insensible, and nearly suffocated. She was at once carried out and taken to the house of Engine Company No. 3, which Company provided a nurse and immediate medical attendance, and every attention was paid the unfortunate woman, until yesterday afternoon, when she was removed to the City Hospital. She vomited quite freely, and having received no other injury than that caused by inhaling smoke, strong hopes are entertained that she will recover. While Miss TREANOR was being cared for, the search was continued for Miss WILSON, her room-mate. As she could not be found in the room, and the window being open, a search was made in the yard at the rear of the building, and there she was found on the brick pavement, having thrown herself out of the window to the yard, a distance of about 60 feet. She was entirely unconscious, and expired within five minutes after she was discovered. Police Surgeon Ball examined the body, but not a single bone was broken, and death was doubtless caused by some internal injury.

The whole loss of property by this fire will not probably exceed $1,200. The building belongs to the company of capitalists of which the late WM. H. CAREY was the agent. The Hoop-skirt Company estimate their loss at about $700. They value their stock and machinery at $12,000, and are insured for $7,000 in the Mechanics', Montauk, Brooklyn, Atlantic, Kings County Insurance Companies of Brooklyn, and in the Commonwealth, of New-York. The building is also fully insured.

Miss WILSON was 18 years of age, and was a daughter of WILLIAM WILSON, janitor of the building, and lived in the basement. She was an amiable, industrious girl, and much esteemed by those acquainted with her. Coroner HORTON, at an early hour yesterday morning, impanneled the following jury: D. Redmond, A. Williams, Wm. H. Little, H. Walters, A. J. Williams and A. Campbell. After viewing the body, the jury adjourned to Thursday next. Soon after the fire was extinguished, the general impression seemed to be that the it the work of an incendiary. Mr. WILSON, father of the young woman killed, alleges that GEORGE ALBRECHT, the engineer, for some fancied offence, had threatened to revenge himself upon deceased, and upon this statement ALBRECHT was arrested on suspicion of having started the fire. His employers, however, have the utmost confidence in his integrity, he having been in their employ for many years, and believe that there is no truth whatever in the charge.

Slander of a Gallant Officer.

FORT MCHENRY, Md., Sunday, March 10, 1861.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of the 8th inst. appears the following, with the signature of "Truth:"

"The Capt. REYNOLDS you refer to this morning is not A. W. REYNOLDS, (who was once dismissed for supposed defalcation, but most honorably and fairly restored after a patient investigation by the law officers of the Government,) but First-Lieut. S. H. REYNOLDS, First Infantry, from Virginia, stationed at San Antonio. The Southern papers are wrong in supposing the traitor TWIGGS a graduate of West Point. He was appointed from civil life in 1812, and has always been detested by nearly every officer obliged to serve under him."

It is due to truth and justice to state that the above is a gross libel on a high-minded and honorable officer, who despises the act referred to as much as yourselves. At the time this treason occurred in Texas "First-Lieut. S. H. REYNOLDS, First Infantry, from Virginia," was on duty at this post, and is now at Fort Columbus, New-York harbor, where I have no doubt he would be glad to meet your "Truth"-ful correspondent." JUSTICE.

Proselytism and Alleged Abduction.

A piece under this heading appears in the TIMES of Tuesday. A few words will explain the true state of the case. The mother of these children was a Protestant, and belonged to St. Mark's Church, where her children attended Sunday School. While on her dying bed, she presented a petition, through friends who had supported the family for three years, to the New-York Orphan Asylum, that her children might be received in it after her death; which request was granted her, when she said she could now die happy. The father, who is a Roman Catholic, thankfully (at the time) assented to his dying wife's request. On the death of the mother, the children were found to be in a sadly neglected condition; and the father being very intemperate, and totally unable to provide for them, they were taken by a sister of the mother, who attended her during her illness, signed off by her, and placed in the New-York Orphan Asylum, where they were happy and contented, and very unwilling to leave it. The Steamship Australasian.

MR. CUNARD CORRECTS THE HERALD.

Mr. CUNARD, in correcting several errors of the Herald, touching the missing steamer Australasian, makes the following statement concerning the speed and general safety of that ship:

"Your next remark is, that though the Australasian had a reputation for speed, she was not regarded by some as the safest ship afloat, and one of the officers of the City of Manchester, it is alleged, resigned his berth in her on that account. There is no truth whatever in this report. You also say that though she was engaged in the Cunard passenger and mail line on her last voyage, she was better adapted for the carrying of freight. In this you are quite in error. She was originally built for first class passengers, and is much better adapted for passengers than freight, her accommodations being far superior to those of any other vessel running on the Atlantic. You are also in error respecting the arrival of the Australasian and Great Eastern. The Australasian arrived in Cork harbor before the Great Eastern at Milford Haven.

I make these corrections because the tone of your article will have a tendency to excite fears in the minds of those who have friends on board, which I confidently hope will soon be removed. I can assure them that no stronger, better built or better fitted out ship, was ever sent to sea than the Australasian.

EXPENSES OF THE NEW-JERSEY LEGISLATURE.—The "Incidental" bill which the New-Jersey Legislature has run up during its present session is nearly $20,000. The Trenton Gazette says:

"Of this amount there is, for postage stamps, $2,420 43; for stationery—including that furnished to members of the Legislature under the resolution, purchased by the officers, and that furnished to the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Clerk of Chancery, &c.—$6,235 32. Of this amount $2,567 50 was expended under the resolution, the balance, $3,667 82, was purchased as above. Another item is for carriage-hire for Committees, &c. The amount—not including carriages for reception of President LINCOLN—is $42 50; including carriages at the President's reception, it amounts to $162 50. The item for expenses of reception of President LINCOLN is in the whole $2,008 38, viz.: P. KATZENBACH'S bill for dinner, $1,534 50; Trenton Cornet Band, $80!! telegraphing, $12 63; carriage-hire, $120; printing tickets, &c., $40; for rosettes, $3 50; bill of Merchants' Hotel, New-York, $27 75; to RUNYON TOMS, (for what service not stated,) $70; for cleaning streets, $20. One of the most formidable items is an appropriation to pay to the delegates to the 'Peace Convention—R. M. Price, T. J. Stryker, P. D. Vroom, F. T. Frelinghuysen, B. Williamson, R. F. Stockton, W. C. Alexander, Gov. Olden and J. V. Randolph—for saving the Union—$1,800!"

IMPORTANT INDIAN TREATY.—We are advised, by a correspondent at Fort Wise, that Hon. A. G. BOONE, an Indian Agent and Commissioner, concluded, on the 18th ult., a very important treaty with the Arrapahoe and Cheyenne Indians, buying all their lands, save a strip one hundred miles long and about fifteen miles wide, beginning about twelve miles below Fort Wise, at the mouth of Big Sandy, and running up the Arkansas one hundred miles, to within five miles of the mouth of the Huerfano, or Wafano.

This treaty has been in contemplation by our Government for a number of years, but from some unknown cause or outside influence, has been prevented. Everything went off to the entire satisfaction of all parties.

This was said to be the largest collection of Indians ever seen on that river, the Arrappahoes, Cheyennes, Kiowas and Camanches being present.

The purchase and treaty secure to our Government Pike's Peak and all the gold-fields of that region. Great credit is due to Mr. BOONE for his persevering and wholly successful efforts in the matter.—Missouri Republican, March 11.

AN OWNER'S RIGHT TO THE SOIL FRONTING ON STREETS.—Judge MELLON decided on Wednesday that parties owning ground fronting on streets or alleys are entitled to soil to the middle thereof, and that a city or borough has no other than a right of way therein, and such other acts upon them as may be necessary to keep them in repair; that a city or borough cannot excavate the stone, gravel, sand, or other material therein, for the purpose of making merchandise of it, nor authorize any one to do so; and that the owner of a lot or alley can sustain an action of trespass against any one entering into the street or alley in front of him, between the line of his lot and the middle of the street, for the purpose of taking out material, or for disposing thereof to others. Under this decision, the jury in the case of Chas. Slipper and David Graham vs. Samuel Hood, rendered a verdict of $100. The authorities of Manchester gave defendant the privilege to remove sand from the street fronting plaintiffs' property, in that borough, and a suit for trespass being brought, it resulted as above stated.—Pittsburgh Dispatch, March 6.

A RUNAWAY VESSEL FOUND.—Bark Messenger Bird, Capt. DELEE, frequently reported as having run away from Rio Janeiro with a cargo of coffee, and having touched at Valparaiso, Tahiti, New-Holland and various other points, has at last turned up under a new name in an old river. Capt. MILLETT, of bark Storm King, which recently arrived at Salem, reports, as we learn from the Merchants' Exchange Books, of this city, that he arrived at Bassora, on the Euphrates River, on the 26th of August, 1860, and found lying there an American bark called the Margaret Jane, and hailing from Bristol, R. I. The captain had disposed of his cargo of coffee, and was about to sell the vessel. Since leaving I have heard from the present captain, J. W. RUSSELL, of Salem, who has written to his friends, that the vessel has been sold, and is now under the Turkish colors. From information that I have heard since arrival, I suspect that the above is the long-lost Messenger Bird.—Boston Traveller.
